Arrival of the Hammonia at this Port and the Indian at Quebec.

The British Ministerial Crisis still in Suspense.

Destruction by Fire of the Boston Ship Grand Duchess.

PASSENGERS AND CREW ALL SAVED.

LATER FROM INDIA.

INTERESTING COMMERCIAL NEWS.

The steamship Hammonia, from Southampton on the 18th May, arrived at this port yesterday morning.

The steamship Indian, from Liverpool on the 19th inst., arrived at Quebec yesterday. The news by these arrivals is four days later

The unusually lengthy passage of the Indian is explained by the following: On Thursday, when it was found that the Indian could not enter the Straits of Bellisle by reason of the ice, she was turned for Cape Race. Her voyage was thus lengthened very materially.

On Friday, at 10¼ P. M., the report for the New-York Associated Press, usually sent ashore at River eu Loup, was sent to Cape Race by a fishing boat. The kindness was well meant, though it unfortunately failed to accomplish its object, inasmuch as neither the boat nor report have as yet turned up.

The steamship Canada arrived at Liverpool on Monday, 17th May.

In the House of Lords, on the 17th and 18th, nothing of importance occurred.

In the House of Commons, on the same day, the Consolidated Fund bill was read a third time and passed.

The adjourned debate on the Governor-General of India was resumed by Mr. ROEBUCK, Sir C. WOOD, Sir R. PEEL, Sir G. LEWIS, and was adjourned, on the motion of Mr. COLLIER, till May 18, and being then debated was again adjourned to the 20th.

Parliament did not sit again on the 19th, because it was the "Derby Day."

The Times City Article of May 18 says: "The amount of business transacted to day in the English funds has been altogether unimportant, but a further slight advance has taken place, apparently on the prospect of the approach of satisfactory arrangements for the future Government of the country."

The Daily News City article of May 18, says: "So long as the fate of the Administration hangs in the balance, the Stock Markets cannot be expected to show animation. To-day business was extremely inactive, but great firmness prevailed. The rapid influx of gold, and the prospect that the Bank of England will recover at least a portion of the sum lately withdrawn from it, promoted a more favorable feeling to-day. The Money Market was quiet, the demand having slackened. At the Bank there were very few applications, and in the open market first-class bills are discounted at 2¼ to 2½ per cent."

The final quotations of the Three-per-Cents on the Paris Bourse, were 69f 70c. for money, and 69f. 65c. for end of May.

The Times says: "The change in the wind has brought up the overdue gold ships from Australia, viz: the Coleroon, with 19,921 ounces; Roxbury Castle, 50,267 ounces; Sydenham, 26,669 ounces. Valued at £387,428. Guy Mannering also, with 167 ounces."

American Securites and mines were dull, and without material variation. Great Western of Canada were also heavy, from the continued decrease in the traffic.

Messrs. NAYLOR, VICKERS, & Co., of Sheffield and New-York, have resumed payment in full.

The news from India is interesting. Sir H. ROSE's advance on Calpee has been delayed by the fear that the Kotah rebels will fall on Jhansi. Orders have been issued by General ROBERTS to advance to Kotah to coöperate with Sir H. ROSE. This military movement is reported since the capture of Kotah. The Sikh force, under Major EVANS, after an obstinate battle of some hours, inflicted a severe defeat on a large body of Bheels—sixty men and four hundred women were captured. British loss, 71 killed and wounded.

Azimghur was relieved by Sir E. LINGARD on the 15th of April. The enemy retreated with regularity, but lost three guns and a great number of men. It is said the enemy will make a stand at Calpee.

The London Chronicle says: "Telegraphic dispatches have been received announcing the issue of the battle of Grahovo. The Turks were completely beaten by the Montenegrins, losing their cannon and baggage. KIAMIL PACHA was left dead on the field of battle. The Turks retired to Kloback, where they were in a state of blockade." A later dispatch says that hostilities have been suspended.

The Herald says: "The solution of the difference between Turkey and Greece is expected to be shortly terminated."

The trial of the Cagliari before the Court of Salerno has been again suspended.

The Times says: "Sinister rumors have been going the round of political circles about the intentions of France towards Belgium, and that at Brussels the prospect of a French invasion is a familiar topic of discussion."

The Cologne Gazette says: "The fortifications of Kongisberg are to be considerably strengthened, and 18 additional forts are to be erected at Spandau, which will make it a fortress of the first rank."

The Chronicle contains the following dispatch from Liverpool, dated the 17th ult: "The Phœnix, Capt. HODIE, that arrived here to-day from Mobile, reports the destruction of a ship by fire. On the 11th, the Phœnix fell in with the ship Grand Duchess, of Boston, from New-York to Liverpool, which sailed from the latter port for her destination on the 13th April. The Grand Duchess was then on fire, and in a most dangerous and critical position, as regards not only the ship herself, but her passengers and crew. The ship was totally consumed, passengers and crew saved by the Phœnix."

The Grand Duchess is owned in Boston by WM. ROPES, and is insured there for $50,000.

THE MINISTERIAL CRISIS IN GREAT BRITAIN.

CONTINUATION OF THE DEBATE ON THE RESOLUTIONS OF CENSURE—SPEECHES OF MR. ROEBUCK, SIR C. WOOD AND OTHERS.

In the House of Commons, on the 17th, the debate on Mr. CARDWELL's resolution of censure against the Government, for Lord ELLENBOROUGH's untimely dispatch to the Governor-General of India, was resumed.

Mr. ROEBUCK said—Sir, a question of more importance was, perhaps, never submitted for discussion in any legislative assembly than that which now occupies the attention of this House. If we think of the number of persons likely to be affected by it, and of the time at which the proposition is brought forward, all these considerations indicate the importance of the subject now under discussion. Sir, GIBBON, in his History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, enters into a discussion on the probable capacity of that empire, and in that magnificent resumé which he gives of the power and importance of the Empire of Rome, he says that the Italians and provincials taken together amounted in numbers to about 120,000,000, and he adds that that was the largest community of men ever subject to any system of domination. But, Sir, our Indian empire leaves this far behind. There are not only 120,000,000, but I think the persons who are influenced by our dominion in India amount to nearly 200,000,000, and there is now submitted to our consideration a question involving the happiness of this large section of the human race; for we have to determine whether the dominion is to be guided by the great principles of honesty and virtue, (cheers) or whether the power which we exercise is to be the only guide of our conduct, and that the object which we have in view is the sole aggrandizement of England. As an Englishman, I cannot help feeling strongly for the dominion, the happiness, and the power of my country; still, there are things which in my mind are even greater than England's importance, and one of these is that mankind should learn to recognize and practice the great principles of honor and virtue. At this present moment there is involved in our discussion this important question—shall we, in the furtherance of our dominion, for objects purely selfish, forget the great principles of virtue and justice. Shall we, in order to establish our dominion over what I may call the defenceless people of India, utterly regardless of that which civilization ought to teach us to regard—shall we, I say, pursue our own objects without any consideration of the principles which ought to govern us as a people? The motion made by the right hon. gentleman the other night is, I think, one of the most transparent of party manœuvres I have ever seen [loud cheers.] and I have seen many transactions of that sort. At this very moment we, the House of Commons, are vindicating to ourselves the government of India—for it is idle to talk of the Crown. The Crown means the House of Commons. [A laugh.] That appears to excite in the minds of some a feeling something like surprise; but I would ask any man who understands the practical working of our system of government to answer me this question—is not all the power said to be centred in the Crown really exercised by this House? Shall we say, when we transfer the government of India from the East India Company to the Crown, that we do not give it to the Ministers of the Crown who act under the control of this House? Therefore I say that when we talk about transferring the government of India from the East India Company to the Crown, we really declare that the House of Commons is to govern India. And at the very time when we are so discussing this matter of the government of India, there comes before us a mere matter of party politics. [Cheers.] We forget the happiness of 200,000,000 of men, and we reduce the question to the consideration of this bench and that. [Renewed cheers, and "No, no!"] No, no! Is there any man so utterly void of consideration of what is going on around him, and of what is being enacted before his eyes—is there any man so like a blind puppy [a laugh] as not to perceive that what we are fighting for now is not the happiness of India, but the government of this country? [Cheers.] But, Sir, let us, if we can, forget these party politics; let us, if we can, consider this question as affecting the happiness of 200,000,000 of human beings. Now, what is the question before us? The right honorable gentleman, the member for Oxford, (Mr. CARDWELL,) propounds a resolution which really involves three points for consideration. First, he says that the President of the Board of Control was wrong in writing any dispatch in answer to the proclamation of Lord CANNING; then he says he wrote the wrong dispatch; and then he says he was wrong in the publication of that dispatch. Now, I am prepared to meet him on all these points. [Cheers.] I say, first, he was bound to write that dispatch; I say, secondly, he wrote the right answer to that dispatch; and, thirdly, I say he was not answerable for the production of that dispatch. [Cheers.] I have no doubt that may astonish some gentlemen in this House, but before I have done I hope I shall be able to satisfy them of its justice. Was he or was he not bound to write an answer to that proclamation? I will not now enter into any discussion of the manner in which we have acquired dominion in India; I will only say this—that having entered it as a body of mere merchants, we, in course of time acquired the dominion of that vast country, but that we did not do so without sacrificing on almost every occasion every principle which ought to guide the justice of a nation [cheers]—that we have been rapacious, that we have been cruel, that we have been unjust, but that we have acquired dominion. [Cheers.] We have done it by the great power and capacity of the men we have sent there—by the wonderful valor of our troops, than which nothing can be more wonderful, [hear, hear,] but, notwithstanding we have sacrificed truth, honor and justice. [Hear, hear.] I know these are to many gentlemen unpalatable truths, but they are truths nevertheless. [Hear, hear,] There is only one justification of dominion, and that is, that it is such as to promote the happiness of the people over whom it is exercised, but in order to produce that happiness it must be a merciful Government, [Hear, hear.] Now, having acquired this dominion in India, there arose a rebellion against us. We had a wonderful army, and that army mutinied. Let no man for one instant suppose that I stand up as one not feeling, deeply feeling, all the atrocities that mutinous army has perpetrated. No man has been more ready to raise his voice against them than I have been, and I will say let punishment to the uttermost follow those atrocities, [hear;] but I draw a broad distinction between the mutinous army and the people of India. [Hear, hear.] And now I come to Oude. The Governor-General of India, and the Directors of the East India Company were pleased to annex Oude to our dominions. I hold some peculiar opinions on this matter. ["Hear, hear," from the Opposition.] You do not know what these opinions are, why do you cheer? [Laughter.] The opinions I hold are that I think the first injustice the least, [hear, hear;] that when you have conquered a country you ought to annex it at once, and not create intermediate authorities and enter into treaties with them; but that, having done so, you are bound by those treaties. [Hear, hear.] Let me take the instance of Scinde. There we began unjustly, but still we conquered Scinde, and we annexed it. That I think a better mode of proceeding than we followed in Oude. We entered into treaties with Oude as far back as 1801, and these treaties contained certain stipulations with regard to the dominions of Oude. Another treaty was made after that, but though laid on the table of this House, it has been declared to be no treaty at all. [Hear, hear.] Ultimately it was declared, on the ground of the treaty, that because the King of Oude did not behave to his people as he ought to have done, his kingdom was to be annexed to our dominions. Now, I say that was an injustice which it would have been far better to avoid by annexing Oude at once. [Hear, hear.] Be that as it may, it pleased the Governor-General and the Court of Directors to annex Oude to our dominions. We ought to recollect that the people of Oude were accustomed to their native dominion, and when the annexation took place they expressed strong feelings of dissatisfaction, and when the mutiny of the army broke out they joined the mutineers. We warred against them, but will any man tell me that we warred against the people of Oude as a band of mutineers and not as a nation? [Hear, hear.] It was a nation warring against a nation, and we conquered them. Now, I solicit the attention of the House to what followed. A scene was enacted to which the history of mankind shows no parallel. [Hear, hear,] Annexing Oude, we immediately proceeded to dispossess the landowners. [Hear.] That created discontent. When the mutiny broke out, the people of Oude, as I have said, joined the mutineers, and we conquered them. But before Oude was conquered, the present Governor-General issued a proclamation, by which he confiscated—I use the term in English as it was written in English—he confiscated, with the exception of that of six persons, all the landed property of Oude. [Hear.] I say that the history of mankind affords no parallel to such a case. [Hear.] I know that the Normans in their day confiscated a great deal of the land, but they did not go the length of confiscating all with the exception of the property of six persons. [Hear, hear.] But to the commencement of the question now before us. The Government of India in this country receives from India a proclamation that was ordered to be issued on the fall of Lucknow; and what did that Government do? It sees that a proclamation is about to be issued which in that Government's opinion would make the whole people of Oude rebellious to the very end of their lives. [Cheers.] And I ask gentlemen to observe that it has been said, and I believe cannot be contradicted, that this proclamation, so issued, so declared, was done in opposition to the opinions and wishes of Sir COLIN CAMPBELL, Sir J. OUTRAM, and Sir J. LAWRENCE. [Hear, hear.] I have seen private letters in London from India, which say that the effect of this proclamation was equivalent to a demand for twenty thousand troops in addition to those we have already in India. [Hear.] I say, then, that the Government which would have passed over a proclamation of that description in silence, would have deserved impeachment [hear;] and I believe there would have been none so ready to say so as the gentlemen now on that (the Opposition) bench. [Laughter.] The President of the Board of Control, on receiving such a proclamation, was bound to express an opinion. Whose opinion? What opinion? His own. [Hear, hear.] He was bound, acting on his own understanding, to tell Lord CANNING what he thought of it, and he did tell him. [Hear, hear.] What other conclusion could he have come to when he read of the confiscation forever of the lands of the people of Oude—for it is idle to tell me this proclamation does not confiscate the whole land of Oude? [Hear, hear.] There are some ugly words in that proclamation, the true sense of which the House cannot fail to see if it will only be guided by its own judgment instead of being led away by party feeling. [Hear, hear.] The Governor-General, in this proclamation, it will be observed, informs the people of Oude that the Government will remunerate those who preserve their allegiance, and he names six persons who are to be permitted to retain their property. But he says further—and, mark you, this proclamation is addressed to the people of Oude, [cheers,] not to the chiefs, not to the landed proprietors, not to the Dukes of Bedford, [cheers and laughter,] but to the people of Oude, with six exceptions, and to them he says that "The proprietary right in the soil of the province is confiscated to the British Government, which will dispose of that right in such manner as to it may seem fitting." [Cheers.] You will recollect that this was written in English, [hear,] and that words more complete could not be used to signify that the whole landed property of Oude was confiscated to the Government of England. [Hear.] And now I will make an observation, if the House will allow me, upon the statement made by the noble Lord the member for the city of London on the injustice of publishing that proclamation and the dispatch of the noble Lord the President of the Board of Control. Now, let us hear how it did occur. This intended proclamation was sent home, but the proclamation was issued at Lucknow, after the fall of Lucknow, and differed in some respects from that proclamation. My honorable friend the member from Birmingham (Mr. BRIGHT) read the actual proclamation as it was published in the Times. He put a question, and an answer was given to him, to which by and by I will refer. The answer given was the answer to this proclamation that I have read, and he was promised that the answer should be laid on the table. It was laid on the table. Could you lay on the table an answer that was not given? ["Oh!"] All the Government could do was to say, "We have sent an answer to the intended proclamation, and that answer you shall know." You did know it, and what was there wrong in that? It is a very simple statement, but a very true one. Therefore, I say that Lord ELLENBOROUGH was bound to give an answer; that, in the second place, he was bound to give that answer which in his honest mind he intended to give; and that this answer was made. And now I come to the third question involved. It has been said that Lord ELLENBOROUGH ought to have made an answer, but that he had no right to publish that dispatch. Therein was the gravamen of the charge made by the right hon. gentleman, (Mr. CARDWELL.) I would ask the house whether there are not certain questions that compel an answer? If I go up to the Secretary of the India Board, and say—"Would you rob a man?" and if the honorable gentleman replied—"Considerations of public policy prevent my answering the question," the presumption would be that he would rob him. [A laugh.] The honorable member for Birmingham said—"I have seen a proclamation from the Governor-General of India about Oude, and I want to know if you have heard of it, whether you have answered it, and the nature of your answer." What occurred? The Secretary to the Indian Board got up and answered one-half of that question. He said "We have answered that proclamation, and you shall see the answer." Upon which my honorable friend, who is not a man to be put off, said "I hope the Government are not satisfied with that answer; I am not. I want to know what you said. Did you agree with the proclamation?" "No," said the Chancellor of the Exchequer, "we did not agree with it; we differed from the policy indicated in every sense." [Cheers.] Now I ask the House, as men of common sense, whether, if the right honorable gentleman had got up and said "considerations of public policy prevent my answering the question," the conclusion of every man would not have been that the Government blamed that proclamation? [Hear, hear.] It is as certain as daylight. If he had approved the proclamation he would have told us so, and by declining to answer he would, in fact, have answered that the Government did not agree with the proclammation. [Hear, hear.] What, then, was the condition to be pursued by the right honorable gentleman? That which he did pursue. He said, "We did disagree from the proclamation." Will you tell me about paralyzing the Governor-General's arm? Who was to blame? [Hear, hear.] Was not Lord ELLENBOROUGH bound to answer the proclamation as his own judgment told him it should be answered? and, if you compelled the publication of that dispatch, the evil of it rests here, and not with the Government. [Cheers.] There is this wonderful peculiarity—I will not say mischief—of a Government like ours—that a people should know what is going on. I believe that the arguments used in this debate go further than some honorable gentlemen think, and that they condemn the hidden diplomacy which is the curse of this country. [Cheers.] I firmly believe that, if we knew from day to day what the Government are doing, we should be better off than we are. [Cheers.] Now we are led blindfold into every error. War comes on us, and we are told we must not inquire. Peace comes on us, and we are told we are too late. [Hear, hear.] When it is important that we should know the public interests step in, and when to know is of no use at all, we are told all. [Loud cheers.] Sir, I want to know if this is not a fair description? There was no other course before the Government except that which they pursued. They were called upon to give an opinion. They did give an opinion, and they gave it according to the honest bias of their own minds. [Cheers.] When they were called upon to publish that opinion it was by this side of the House, and they had no alternative. It was published in spite of themselves, and the publication is not to be laid at their door. [Cheers.] Well, then, if we are to regard our Indian dominion as a matter in which we have an interest, we have a yet greater interest in truth and justice. [Hear.] If you wanted to pacify India it would be by the course pointed out in the dispatch of Lord ELLENBOROUGH. It has been said that this dispatch ought to be printed in letters of gold. Sir, I believe so. That was an honest dispatch, and I do not know my own countrymen if they do not come to the same conclusion. [Cheers.] I entreat my countrymen to remember that there are things above party. If they are to consider mere party moves I will ask them what they will get if the Government are in a minority to-night? Why, a Government that we have cashiered lately [loud cheers], because they neglected the honor of England. [Continued cheering.] We are to allow honorable gentlemen on this side of the House, after passing a few weeks in the cold regions of Opposition, to go in State across to that (the Treasury) bench. [Cheers.] And for what? Do the people of England expect any change in the policy of the late Government? If they do they are wofully deceived. Sir, I believe that good government, that happiness for the people, that the advance of liberal measures, which we all desire, are more to be obtained from that weak government [pointing to the Treasury bench] than from the strong insolence of this. [Pointing to the front Opposition bench amid great cheering.] I have seen, Sir, both, I have tried them both, and I am sure that we are further advanced in a course of improvement and liberty than we should have been under the guidance of the noble lord (Lord PALMERSTON). [Cheers.] If we seek simple honesty—if we want justice for the people of England—if we seek the happiness of the people of England and good government for England, we shall give a decided negative to the resolutions of the right honorable gentleman, the member for Oxford. (Loud cheers.)

Sir C. WOOD said Lord JOHN RUSSELL had clearly stated the issue, when he said the House was called on to condemn Lord CANNING, or to condemn the Government's condemnation of Lord CANNING. He (Sir C. WOOD) refused to condemn Lord CANNING. [Hear, hear.] Such condemnation, in the absence of information, was unjust. [Hear, hear.] He condemned the Government for having, in the like absence of information condemned Lord CANNING. That course imperilled our Indian empire. (Hear, hear.) He disclaimed party feeling. [Laughter, and "Hear, hear."] He said nothing against Lord ELLENBOROUGH personally or individually; he blamed the whole Government; and quite agreed with the opinion of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, quoted the other night, that it was wrong to single out a member of a Cabinet, as a scapegoat for the acts of the whole body. As to clemency, he had advocated it when it was unpopular. Clemency, however, depended on the way in which a proclamation was carried out. The right honorable gentleman at some length contended that the proclamation was directed against only the rebel landed proprietors, and he showed that a large majority of these held their lands by the strong hand rather than by right, and their acquisition of territory being marked by enormities of a barbarous and revolting character. He urged, also, that the confiscation was of the same kind as that which had been so beneficial to our rule in Scinde and the Punjaub, and that, therefore, the disasters spoken of by the other side were not fairly anticipated. Was, then, the Government right in condemning Lord CANNING wholesale? [Hear, hear.] If right, they might, surrounded as we were with difficulties, have expressed their disapprobation in more appropriate terms—not in terms of invective. [Hear, hear.] Did they wish him to resign? [Hear, hear.] If so, and if he did resign, they would have taken from India the man who had weathered this storm, and held with a firm hand the reins of power in most difficult circumstances. [Hear, hear.] But not only had the Government addressed this dispatch to Lord CANNING, but they had published it. He believed there was not a man in the House who thought the publication right, and he quite agreed with the Chancellor of the Exchequer, that on such a subject all the Ministry were alike responsible, and that one could not with propriety be made the scapegoat of the rest. But besides that he showed that the Chancellor of the Exchequer had taken more than a share of the publication, for he had stated orally the general nature of the dispatch before its production, and prevented the withdrawal of the promise of publication, which, if it had been urged on the ground that the interests of the public service required it, would in all probability have been at once acceded to by both Houses of Parliament. He contended that the dispatch was written with a view of publication. [Hear, hear.] It was in fact a proclamation, and not a dispatch. [Hear, hear.] What effect would the dispatch have on the authority of the Governor-General? What authority would he have if the people of India were told that his acts were unjust and unjustifiable? If that was the opinion of the Government, they should have recalled him. [Hear, hear.] What would be the effect of the dispatch on those who were in arms in Oude? Was it not a direct instigation to proceed in their designs? [Hear, hear.] The dispatch would be published in every native paper; and what part of India would then be safe from insurrection and war? He believed that the dispatch, instead of being a message of peace, would be a message of war. [Hear, hear.] It was the duty of the House of Commons to protest against the course taken by the Government, and they should proclaim to India that they were determined to hold those possessions which had been won by the valor of British soldiers and the skill of British Generals. They should tell the people of India that they would rule in India, not as the King of Oude ruled in Oude, but with equity and justice, and especially with clemency and mercy. [Cheers.]

Several other members spoke, for and against the resolution.

Sir R. PEEL observed that Mr. CARDWELL had referred to the motives and objects of his motion. Those motives and objects, in his (Sir R. PEEL's) opinion, were, not the interest of poor Lord CANNING, nor of the millions in India under our rule; but an opportunity was offered, and was not to be lost, for attacking the Government, and India must be made the battle-field. Such a motion, instead of tending to the assistance of our countrymen in India, must greatly increase their embarrassment, and the country must, he thought, deprecate the course pursued. After defending the policy of Lord DALHOUSIE, in annexing Oude, he denounced in strong terms that disclosed in the "manifesto" of Lord CANNING, and asked the House whether it was prepared to sanction arbitrary spoliation, or whether it would require that severe acts should be tempered with moderation. Assuming that this had been made a party question, Sir ROBERT discussed with great freedom the comparative merits of Lord DERBY and PALMERSTON, as First Ministers of the Crown, making the scale preponderate sensibly in favor of the former, and he called upon the Liberal Party to give their support upon this motion to the Government.

Sir G. LEWIS denied that the motion was an attempt to raise a party issue; there was nothing further from the truth, he said, than that this question had not been forced upon the Opposition, who could not, without a dereliction of political duty, have passed it over. He reviewed the policy of annexing Oude from its inception, and then examined the proclamation, and the meaning of the term "confiscation" in that document, upon which so much stress had been laid. What he understood by it was, he said, not actual but threatened confiscation. According to the fairest and most reasonable construction, what Lord CANNING intended was, in case of a rebellion where the territory had belonged to the Crown and the East India Company, to declare as a penalty that the proprietary right should be forfeited to the British Government. It never could have been his intention to dispossess the entire population of Oude, and turn them adrift, which was contrary to modern policy, and the Government, before assuming anything so improbable, ought, he contended, to have waited for explanation. If, after the dispatch was officially brought to the knowledge of the House, it took no step, but silently acquiesced in the writing and dispatching such an instrument, it would share in the responsibility of the Government, and become an accomplice in their acts.

Mr. WHITESIDE began by noticing the inconsistency shown by the supporters of a resolution which declared that the House abstained from giving an opinion upon the policy of the proclamation in defending its policy and asserting that that was the true question before the House and the foundation of the whole discussion. He observed that, although the publication of the opinion of the Government on the subject of the policy contained in the proclamation had been made the foundation of this resolution, this declaration of their views had been distinctly and unequivocally made by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, in reply to a question put by Sir E. PERRY, on the 23d of April, the declaration being, he said, cheered by members of the late Government. How, he asked, could they, after this, turn round and censure the present Government? He then commented upon the want of explanation of the proclamation, and upon the "private letter," which was still not forthcoming, suggesting, as no explanation had yet been received from Lord CANNING, that there might have been some other private letter, withheld as the other had been, the information in which would have afforded a material guide to Lord ELLENBOROUGH. Referring to the proclamation, which he termed an awful one, he contrasted its policy with similar documents promulgated by the Marquis of WELLESLEY and the Marquis of DALHOUSIE, and challenged the production of any proclamation issued by the British Government in which private property was not respected. The meaning of the proclamation was disputed, but the question was what the document, when submitted to the Government, could be fairly understood to mean; and he contended that this monstrous proclamation could only be understood to be fulminated not only against large landholders, but holders of small properties,—a class martial as well as agricultural. He read the dispatch of Lord ELLENBOROUGH by the light of this construction of the proclamation, and he repelled the objection of Lord J. RUSSELL to the reference made in the dispatch to the annexation of Oude. He defended the policy of the dispatch, not, he said, in the letter, but in spirit; if the other side disputed that policy, he called upon them to bring the question to an issue upon a distinct motion, and try whether it was condemned by the House and by the country.

On the motion of Mr. COLLIER, the debate was again adjourned till the next day.

In the House of Commons on the 18th, the debate on Mr. CARDWELL's resolution was continued, but without eliciting anything of importance. It was confined to the mere asking and answering of questions, and was again adjourned.

FURTHER FROM MEXICO.

Details of News by the Tennessee—Reported Closing of Mexican Ports, &c.

From the New-Orleans Picayune, May 25.

The steamship Tennessee, Captain FORBES, arrived here yesterday from Vera Cruz, which she left on the 21st inst., to which date we have files of papers thence. The Tennessee brings Admiral ZERMAN as passengers, and six others in the steerage. Her freight consists of five cases of vanilla, consigned to BRUGIERE & Co., and $11,880 in specie.

At Sacrificios, the Spanish frigate Baylen, and the French brig-of-war La Peyrouse, were lying at anchor.

Daily communication with the interior was uninterrupted, as far as mails and passengers were concerned; but the conveyance of freight was not attempted.

The port of Vera Cruz had been blockaded for three days by the Mexican war-steamer Guerrero, but on the 17th she went south for fuel.

On the morning of 21st Captain FORBES was informed that advices had been received from the Capitol that the ZULOAGA Government had declared all Mexican ports closed to commerce.

The mail arrived from the Capitol in time for the Tennessee.

The Progreso, of the 21st instant, published a decree of Governor ZAMORA, strictly ordering the debts due on corporation property purchased under the ley Lerdo, the law of desamortizacion, to be paid and enforced, in accordance with the provisions of that enactment, which some of the purchasers, at least, have sought to evade, endeavoring to secure the property without paying for it.

On General MARIN, of the steamship Guerrero, announcing to Commodore GEOFFROY, of the French brigantine-of-war La Peyrouse, that he had blockaded that port, this officer observed that the blockade was attempted in a very unusual manner, and that until he received instructions from the French Minister in Mexico, he should take under his immediate protection French merchant vessels, which might be on the way thither and ignorant of the steps taken to blockade the port.

The Progreso gives a lamentable picture of the condition of ECHEAGARAY's forces in Cordova. They are said to be without pay or rations, the soldiers and their families dependent on charity for support, and the former subjected to severe punishments for the slightest offences. Two of the garrison are said to have died from ill-treatment, and four others to be in the hospital without hope of recovery. The chiefs are said to have plundered the rector of $800, and then to have tried to induce him to sign a document declaring that the puros or Constitutionalists had robbed him of it! In order to secure a vote of thanks from the ladies to ECHEAGARAY, they are said to have threatened their fathers and brothers that they would ally with the soldiers if they did not sign the document! One lady, for declining to take it round for signatures among her friends, was threatened exclusion from the church, and refusal of absolution! Coming through the channel it does—the Progreso being a vehement puro—all this is to be taken cum grano salis.

A decree of Governor ZAMORA, of the 19th inst., permits the introduction of foreign ordinary soap into Vera Cruz, for the period of three months, at the same duty as is charged on the home made article.

Official communications from General ALVAREZ, according to the Progreso, announce to Señor DE LA LLAVE, that he would have two additional brigades in the field by the 3d inst., one of which was to operate against Toluca, the other against Iguala, with a view of advancing on Cuernavaca. The routing of MIRAMON at San Luis Potosi, and the brilliant triumph of the Liberals at Zacatecas, conjoined with this, had induced the Zuloaga Government to send OSOLLOS, with a force of 1,500 recruits and $120,000, to reunite the scattered troops, and meet the old General. His triumph, however, is confidently calculated on; for, says the Progreso, in the case of ALVAREZ, there will be no defections, treacheries, or tardy negotiations and capitulations to make.

A corporal and a private who had deserted from the Zuloaguista forces at the Puent Nacionale and gone to Vera Cruz, are said to declare that for eight days those forces had to live on half a real a day, and that for four days subsequently they were without pay or support of any kind.

Sr. DEGOLLADO, it is stated, was advancing against Guadalajara, with a respectable force, with which there was no doubt he would be able to overcome the small Zuloaguista garrison there, under BLANCARTE.

A forced loan had to be imposed in the capital to raise the money placed at the disposal of OLLOS, as above stated.

Sr. NEGRETE addressed a lengthy letter to Col. FREJO, asking him to abandon the Constitutionalists; but the latter declined in very elaborate terms, and published the correspondence.

There had been a skirmish at the Puente National on the 14th, in which the attacking guerrillas of the Constitutionalists were successful, but it did not amount to much.

On the 10th inst., a terrible explosion took place at Vera Cruz, in an establishment for making munitions, by which about a dozen people were killed on the spot, three so severely injured that they died a few days afterwards, and many were wounded so that they still remained in the hospital.

A circular, signed by Sr. OCAMPO, as Secretary of State, dated the 6th inst., announces the establishment of the Constitutionalist Government, under President JUAREZ, in Vera Cruz.

The Zuloaga Government has nominated Sr. LARRAINZAR as Minister to Rome.

General SOTA has offered his services to the Juarez Government.

THE CASE OF THE SHIP JOHN AND ALBERT.

Uneasiness at the British Embassy—Fears of a Collision between the English and American War-Vessels.

[OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, June 1.

Considerable uneasiness is felt at the British Embassy lest a collision should occur in the Gulf between the English and American war-vessels before the British Admiral receives Lord NAPIER's dispatches, which he has requested to be sent in a special steamer from Halifax to Bermuda. Rumors were actually current here to-day, of a collision between the U. S. steam-frigate Fulton and the Styx, last heard from at Key West, but they were without any foundation.

[FROM THE REPORTER FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, June 1.

Lord NAPIER has desired his dispatches to Admiral STEWART, sent from Washington yesterday, to be forwarded from Halifax by special steamer to Bermuda. He has advised the Admiral to order a discontinuance of the visitation of American vessels, pending the instructions of Her Majesty's Government.

BRITISH OUTRAGES IN THE GULF.

Case of the Ship John and Albert—Full Particulars by Captain Crowell—War-Steamers off the Balize.

The New-Orleans Picayune, of the 25th of May, publishes the following account, as given by Captain CROWELL, of being chased, fired at five times, and finally boarded by a British war-steamer, in the Gulf, on the 17th inst.:

May 17, 1858, at sea on board ship John and Albert, of Boston, H. CROWELL, master.

At noon, Stone Key Lighthouse, Cuba, bore southwest about 12 miles distance, a great number of vessels in sight, steering different courses. Observed a two-topsail schooner, standing out from Cardenas, as I supposed, and bound for Havana, as there are two schooner propeller packets in that trade.

At 2 o'clock she was a little forward of our beam, steering the same course, and rather going ahead of us, as the breeze was light, not more than 6 knots per hour. I occasionally looked at her, but saw no colors or pennant flying. The latter could not be seen on account of her top-gallant sails being hoisted up close under it, and her colors on account of her quarter-boat, as I afterwards found out. I still took him to be that packet and none other, and had he chose he could have come within hailing distance. Even if he could not have fired a musket to attract our attention towards him, I should have had the American flag flying as soon as possible, in answer to any nation's flag, whether man-of-war or not. But, so far from doing so, he allowed his drogher-looking schooner to go along side and side for more than an hour, until the breeze freshened to a nine-knot breeze or more.

We passed and left him about the same distance astern, when he fired a gun. I remarked they were having a jubilee on board, or cleaning their signal gun. This was about 3 o'clock. In about ten or fifteen minutes we saw him swing off, with his broadside towards us, and fire again, the shot striking about sixty yards astern of us, nearly in a direct line. I immediately ordered the colors to be hoisted. Had got them bent on and was hoisting when he fired another gun, the shot falling further off than the first, as we were leaving him very fast astern. When he kept off to fire the second gun I caught sight of a blue flag flying between his quarter-boat and square mainsail, on a flag-staff at her stern. But to tell what it was, with the imperfect view I could get, was impossible, the distance being so great. I had the colors set for some ten or fifteen minutes, and, thinking he was satisfied, had them hauled down.

He again swung her off and gave us another gun, which shot fell a long way short of us. The last one was at about three hours forty-five minutes. Soon after we saw him haul up his square mainsail, and saw smoke coming from his smoke stack. She was then almost hull down, as she was very deep and low in the water.

After 4, the breeze began to leave us again, and he was getting up steam fast and began to gain on us. I had the American flag hoisted and kept flying. At 5½ o'clock we went to supper. At 5¾ the officer of the deck reported that he was keeping off to fire again, and that we had got a strong breeze, which breeze he brought along with him, which was the occasion of his coming up so fast. He fired his gun, the shot striking close alongside to windward.

I had the ship brought to the wind immediately, studding sails set below and aloft on both sides, and the wind blowing a ten-knot breeze with tacks of courses down. The royal and studding sails, halyards and tacks a-flying, courses half hauled up and everything starting enough to take the spars out of the ship. Afterwards, had to cut away halyards and braces to get studding sails clear. While in that position, hove to the wind, he closed to us; he fired another gun, the shot passing over our heads and striking in the water close to leeward. It must have gone close just over the bulwarks and forward of the mainmast to have struck in the water so close to leeward. She then rounded to and sent a boat with two officers on board.

As they came on board one of the officers extended his hand. I told him I did not shake hands with pirates. They said they were no pirates, but belonged to a British man-of-war. I asked them if they called that drogher a man-of-war. I saw for the first time she had a pennant flying, as they were furling the top-gallant sails. They asked for the ship's papers, looked over the register and crew list, noted down where from, and bound, and then left, without going or looking under deck. I might have had the ship full of negroes or fillibusters, and they none the wiser. They left, looking very much as if they had done a very ungentlemanly act, advising me always to keep my colors flying when in company of a British man-of-war, and said I ought to thank them for their forbearance in not dismasting us, then went over the side, leaving their note-book behind them. They shoved off in their boat without telling me I might fill away until I asked them as they were going past the stern.

As I filled away I saw a steamer ahead, coming toward us, (it was about 7 o'clock,) shortly after a large steam-frigate passed close to us, went a little ways, and hove to and made signals with lights for the schooner to come to her, which she did, and hove to under his lee; a few moments afterwards we lost sight of their lights. I expected the steamer hearing the firing in the Havana, as we were no more than 30 miles off, and came to the rescue.

Affirmed to and signed by myself, officers and crew, on board ship John and Albert, at sea, May 21, 1858.

The New-Orleans True Delta of the 25th has the following:

"We learn from Captain WHITMORE, of the towboat A. J. Whitmore, that on Thursday, the 20th inst., when about 15 miles off Northeast Pass, saw a large side-wheel war steamer standing to the northward and eastward. And on Friday, the 21st inst., when 20 miles off South Point, saw another, a propeller, also standing to the northward and eastward."

The Right of Search.

CASE OF THE BARK PANCHITA—OFFICIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

Mr. Dallas to Mr. Cass.

LEGATION OF THE UNITED STATES,
LONDON, Oct 9, 1857.

SIR: At about 11 o'clock last night I received the communication from her Majesty's principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, which, with its various annexes, I transmit in copy. It is in answer to my letter of the 16th ultimo, respecting Commander MORESBY's proceedings in the visitation, search, and seizure of the Panchita.

Too little time is left me to do more than make a few brief remarks upon these papers.

1. The particular case would seem to be satisfactorily disposed of. Commander MORESBY's conduct is disclaimed and censured; he is withdrawn from the station as unfit to be trusted there, and express orders are alleged to have been given by the Admiralty which must prevent the repetition of such acts.

2. It is observable that the disavowal and condemnation of Commander MORESBY's proceeding are with great reserve founded exclusively upon the stipulations of the treaty of 1842. Except as inconsistent with the arrangement of that treaty, his insult to the national flag, his search and seizure upon mere suspicion, might have been unproved. You will pardon me for suggesting that, while his pretension of a right to supervise and reform the commercial pursuits of other countries by the means of visit and search, is thus covertly maintained against the frank remonstrance of the United States, it may be doubted whether it be consistent with the national dignity to prolong the exceptionable compact under whose express terms alone an immunity is recognized.

3. The grumbling efforts of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty to insinuate fault in the American squadron on the coast of Africa, and to extenuate Commander MORESBY's violation of public law and of his own orders by attributing it in a measure to "galled feelings," are so wholly foreign to the point drawn to the notice of the British Government that it is really difficult, if not impossible, to repress the smile which that misplaced awkwardness provoked.

The tenor of your instructions on the subject, in [illegible], would seem to contemplate my [illegible] [illegible] than what has been obtained, [illegible] [illegible] prohibitory orders. I shall [illegible] [illegible] further until you [illegible] [illegible] that he intended, [illegible] [illegible] for [illegible], if possible, [illegible] [illegible] of the Navy as may [illegible] [illegible] the efficiency and [illegible] of our African squadron.

I have the honor to be, Sir, your most obedient servant,

G. M. DALLAS.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of State.

Earl Clarendon to Mr. Dallas.

FOREIGN OFFICE, Oct. 8, 1857.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 16th ult. respecting the proceedings of Commander MORESBY, of Her Majesty's ship Sappho, in detaining on the coast of Africa, and eventually sending to New-York, the American bark Panchita, on the ground that she was engaged in the Slave-trade.

I feel that I can return no more satisfactory answer to your representation on this matter than by communicating to you, for the information of the Government of the United States, a copy of a reply which I have received from the Board of Admiralty to the reference which I made to them on the receipt of your letter, from which you will perceive that the Lords Commissioners have highly disapproved the conduct of Commander MORESBY, and have directed that he should be removed from the station where he might again have to deal with vessels suspected of being engaged in the Slave-trade.

There can be no doubt that the detention of the Panchita, and the sending her to New-York constituted an infraction of the treaty between Great Britain and the United States; but the views which the British Admiral on the station has taken of Commander MORESBY's proceedings in this case, and the terms in which the displeasure of the Lords of the Admiralty have been conveyed to that officer, will, I feel assured, be satisfactory to the Government of the United States.

But I feel equally assured that great allowance will be made by the Government of the United States for officers charged with the suppression of the Slave-trade, who are compelled to witness the frequent and unchecked abuse of the American flag in the prosecution of the trade, and who see that, under the protection of that flag, and in consequence of no American ship-of-war having for nearly a twelvemonth appeared on the station, the nefarious traffic is now carried on in the most open and daring manner, and with a constantly increasing activity.

In corroboration of what I have stated above, I beg leave to transmit copies of a dispatch and its inclosures received at the Admiralty from Rear Admiral Sir FREDERICK GREY, the officer commanding her Majesty's naval forces on the west coast of Africa, which contains the most recent information upon the subject which has reached her Majesty's Government.

I have the honor to be, &c.,

CLARENDON.

Sailing of the Wabash.

The United States steam-frigate Wabash left her anchorage at Staten Island yesterday morning at 9½ o'clock. She goes first to Jamaica, partly for the purpose of landing thirty men who were shipped on board the Susquehanna in place of the sick and disabled when she put in there with the yellow fever. It is also understood that some fitting acknowledgment will be made to the authorities at Port Royal for the humane treatment extended to the sick of the Susquehanna, and for the prompt assistance afforded to her officers by Admiral Sir HOUSTON STEWART on that occasion.

The Wabash will cruise on both sides of Cuba, and will then proceed to her original destination in the Mediterranean. On Monday, the officers of the Wabash were visited by their friends, who went down the Bay on board a steamer, accompanied by the Band of the North Carolina, for the purpose of bidding them farewell. The party dined on board; there was singing and other social festivities; and when the visitors left, the officers assembled on the poop deck, and the crew manned the rigging and gave three hearty cheers.

British Insults—How it Strikes a Stranger.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I believe the American people are generally willing to hear both sides of the question. The writer arrived here some days ago from Scotland, and was surprised to witness the ferment amongst the public and the Press about what are called insults to the American flag. I have looked in vain for any explanation of the intentions of England in this matter; it is spoken of as if her only end and aim was a spiteful endeavor to irritate and offend the American people, and every press and politician, and every person you meet, Whig, Democrat and Republican, like a flock of sheep or a pack of hounds, rush on with frantic haste in the same track—sauve qui peut. De'il tak the hindmost—he'll certainly be taken for a Britisher, and tarred and feathered, as he deserves. Is there no individuality of character here? do you all act as droves? Is there not a single American bold enough to tell his countrymen that this is a question of humanity, much more than an American question? That your flag is insulted and degraded a thousand times more by the wretches engaged in the horrid traffic which you boast you were the first to pronounce piracy, than it is by the friendly visit of a British cruiser, merely inquiring into the nationality of the vessel.

Let us suppose the case reversed. Suppose a dozen score pirates upon your coast, preying upon your commerce and murdering your citizens; that these pirates used the British flag, and that they so closely resembled honest merchant ships, that without visitation they could not be distinguished. In such a case would your ships-of-war quietly allow the villains to carry on their work of blood through fear of insulting the British flag, by a friendly visit to a merchant vessel to ascertain her true character and nationality? Or do you think the British people would put themselves into a ferment from Lands' End to John o'Groats, like a parcel of madmen, for such a cause? Would not your nation demand, as one man, that these criminals should be caught and punished as their crimes deserved, at all hazards? Either that England should destroy them herself, or you would do it, whatever number of British ships required visiting? And let me tell you the British people would bid you God speed in your noble work. Nothing can be farther from the mind of the British people than to give needless offence to their kinsmen here; and they will wonder much when they hear of your choler for such a worthy cause.

Horrible Affair at Des Moines, Iowa.

A JEALOUS LOVER KILLS HIS RIVAL—ATTEMPTS THE LIFE OF THE LADY AND NEARLY COMMITS SUICIDE.

A clergyman in Des Moines, Iowa, writes to his friends in this City the following account of a horrible tragedy in his town:

DES MOINES, Iowa, Monday, May 24, 1858.

A tragical and frightful affair has just occurred in our midst. Last evening, about dusk, while sitting in my library, I heard a series of agonizing shrieks, and on running out to the gate saw ELIZABETH KING, a young girl whose residence is near ours, running towards the house, covered with blood. She fell before reaching the gate; we picked her up and conveyed her to her house. The only words she uttered were, "Oh God! CHANDLER and ROSSITER are both dead." My son was off with my horse, by the time she had told this, and several men at once followed him. My son went more swiftly than the rest, and when on the hill which slopes down from the chapel, near the brick-yard, his horse shied suddenly into the copse, almost leaping over the body of CHANDLER, who lay there stone dead. I reached the spot five minutes later, with a lantern. CHANDLER was stark dead, and ROSSITER lay near him, soaking the soil with his blood, and moaning, with a convulsive gasp now and then. I called for water, and flung it in his face, and questioned him. His only reply was, "Let me die," and he afterwards added that "he was a great sinner." I said, "Ask God's forgiveness, CHARLIE; man will never forgive you." He was taken into a house. The news spread like wild-fire. The Methodists at meeting heard of it, and crowds continued to fill the woods and adjacent copse. CHANDLER was borne on a board to K——'s house. But ROSSITER still lives, but only, of course, to die by the law, if not by his wound or popular violence. It appears that ELIZABETH had a long time since rejected ROSSITER's suit in favor of CHANDLER, and he thirsted for revenge. A week ago to-day, I encountered him in the street, and expostulated with him on his reckless intemperance—a new vice with him. He declared that his rival should never marry ELIZABETH, and said that he chose drunkenness, for it was that "which would give him more favor with KING"—the girl's father. I said, "Remember, CHARLIE, the judgment of the great day, and God's punishment." He replied, "There is no more hell than I now endure; I now suffer the worst I can suffer." It is supposed that he has been nerving himself by brandy for six or seven weeks, for this deed of murder. He slept with his victim, who was a generous, open hearted fellow, a brick-mason by trade. He ate with him last evening. After tea, CHANDLER and ELIZABETH walked out together. ROSSITER hid himself in the copse, stepped into the path behind them as they were coming home, and fired at CHANDLER, with a pistol placed within an inch of his head. CHANDLER fell dead. ROSSITER then fired at ELIZABETH. She fell, but rose again. He presented his pistol again at her, when she seized it, exclaiming: "Oh, CHARLIE, don't kill me." He fired, but the ball went through her hand, struck her shoulder, and passed in and out between her skull and the scalp, making two holes in her bonnet. ROSSITER then put the pistol to his own head, and fell, with a horrid wound in the right side of it, from which blood flowed in great quantities. CHANDLER will be buried from the Church this afternoon.

Yours, E.

Correspondence of the New York Times.

BOSTON, Monday, May 31, 1858.

Anniversary Week went off very well. There was much work done, and some excitement had, but not enough to alarm people. The Abolitionists held their meetings, which, as usual, were spirited, but were of even less practical consequence than the late Southern Convention at Montgomery. The Tract Society quarrel was got over by a sort of compromise. The union was voted for another year, in the hope that sinners may repent; and then Mr. BLISS was turned out of the place he had so long filled, that of Treasurer, because of his conservative ideas. The town was quite full, and very queer specimens of humanity were some of the visitors.

The impression is very general that Mr. WOLCOTT did pocket that heavy sum which he was intrusted with to bribe members of Congress, and that he made of it his share of the capital in the firm of GARDNER, WOLCOTT & Co. He had, to be sure, some small property before he went into the bribery and corruption line, but not enough to cover a third part of what he has paid into the new house, according to all accounts. I believe he claims to have made money by doing something in indigo; but, though he is blue enough, it is notorious that nothing has been done in indigo for a long time, save to make losses. A story is told of him that shows how those who knew him well were surprised to hear he was a capitalist. When a distinguished merchant was compelled temporarily to suspend payment, some months ago, at the height of the panic, Mr. WOLCOTT said to him, patronizingly: "You should have applied to me, and I'd have helped you." "You!" said the merchant, who had had the best opportunity for knowing his circumstances; "why, I needed fifty thousand dollars in one day alone!" "Well," returned Mr. WOLCOTT, calmly, "I could have let you had that amount." A ROTHSCHILD wouldn't have carried the thing off after a cooler fashion. It is barely possible that injustice may be done to Mr. WOLCOTT, by the belief that he pocketed $70,000 of other men's money; but, if so, he has only himself to blame for the existence of this injustice, for he has simply to give the names of the persons to whom he handed over the money as bribes, and no one will then believe that he stole it—appropriated it—I mean, to his own use. Those who placed the money in his hands will never prosecute him, but as their affairs are now in the hands of assignees, perhaps we may hear more of the matter, and something to the purpose. Ex-Governor GARDNER is said to be very angry with his partner—for allowing himself to be found out.

The new Custom-House at Portsmouth, (N. H.,) the building of which was commenced on the 26th, is one of the most outrageous jobs ever conceived or executed. The amount already appropriated for it is $138,000, and it will be $200,000 by the time the building shall be finished; and yet, as far as any necessity for the edifice exists, it might as well have been built up in the back settlements of Coos County. It is to be 82 feet by 60, and 60 feet high, and of the very best materials, fire-proof, and all that. There will be ample sleeping room for all the officers of the establishment, as drowsy a set of useless and harmless individuals as the muddle-headed set at Salem, described by HAWTHORNE. There is no occasion for hurrying the work, as the building will be far ahead of the business of Portsmouth half a century hence.

Gov. ANTHONY's election to the United States Senate, by the Legislature of Rhode Island, is a source of unmixed satisfaction here. We all know his ability, and that in every way he is qualified for the post. He succeeds Gov. ALLEN, and when the latter gentleman shall retire, there will be not a Democratic Senator from New-England. There were six such Senators from New-England, when Gen. PIERCE was made President, with a fair prospect of the number being increased. There were one hundred votes cast in the Rhode Island Legislature when Gov. ANTHONY was chosen, and of these, only eight were given for the Democratic candidate! This happened, too, in a State which voted for Gen. PIERCE, and which had two Democratic Senators in the last two Congresses, and two Democratic Representatives, also, in the first of PIERCE's Congresses.

RICHARD GREENOUGH's statue of Gov. WINTHROP has been placed in the Chapel at Mount Auburn, opposite that of Judge STORY. Critics say it is a fine work.

CHARLOTTE CUSHMAN will appear as Queen Katharine, in "Henry VIII.," this evening, at the Boston. Miss CUSHMAN, it is announced, will retire from the stage at the conclusion of this engagement. I have seen as many dramatic retirements as Wamba had truces with the Infidels, and they make me feel as old as he felt.

We are more fortunate than you are in New-York, in the article of milk. It is calculated that the article is brought here pure, and is adulterated after its arrival, about 25 per cent., with water, which is a harmless beverage,—but then Cochituate does get a little fishy at times, and raw eel in milk is not, perhaps, the happiest combination ever formed. The popular prejudice is against it. "Swill-milk" is here unknown, and if we are cheated only with water, and that merely to the extent of 25 per cent., we should indeed be unreasonable to murmur.

Some of our railroad Companies hope soon to be able to substitute coal for wood in "getting up the steam." A new locomotive on the Newburyport road, built by Mr. TALBOT, has so far succeeded with coal, as to show that a saving of 75 per cent. can be made by using it. This is said to be the most perfect coal-engine in the country.

The shoe business continues to improve in Lynn, and that fine town begins to look lively once more. Nothing more is heard of that "strike."

The Starr King, which sailed hence last week for Alexandria, took out two lots of missionaries,—first, a number of ministers and their wives, who go to Palestine; and ten passenger-cars for the Pacha of Egypt's railroad. Either collection would have made the Crusaders stare, could they have seen them. The Pacha saw the ship, and hummed Partant pour la Syrie.

Scandal says that a rich and pious citizen of Westfield, who is equally prominent in the church and the bank, of which he is a Director, has been detected in an intrigue with a handsome woman now in bonds on the charge of counterfeiting. Gentlemen are getting to be either very wicked or very careless. They should reform in one particular or the other. Westfield is famous, not only for the growth of sinners, but for the manufacture of that kind of whip which the overseers of slaves are supposed to prefer to any other, and which in their hands is a sceptre.

Mr. SUMNER's letter is a text on which the politicians make discourses, if they do not preach sermons. They construe it, not grammatically, but politically. They say it means resignation, and that the Senate house is destined to know the eloquent gentleman no more forever. Gov. BANKS is to be his successor, and the next election must be fought on that basis, which will require the nomination of a proper man for the Lieutenant-Governorship, as the second officer would become the first in the event of the Governor being transferred to the Senate. The place is now held by Mr. TRASK, of Springfield, an American, or Know-Knothing, who was nominated when the Banks ticket was reconstructed; was, in fact, the pinch of fresh salt sprinkled on the tail of the Know-Nothing faction, when it was found a dangerous experiment to fight the battle on pure Republican principles in a State which gave Colonel FREMONT 109,000 votes. According to all usages, Mr. TRASK ought to have the nomination next time, but he's not precisely the wood whence Governors are hewn, and he'll be dropped if the prospect of his present chief's further promotion shall be uncommonly good in the autumn time. He'll fall with the leaf. The race of man, HOMER long ago told the world, is as the race of leaves, and politicians are but men. Republicanism would roar at the thought of an American becoming lord of all the land. What I saw last year, shows the estimate in which it holds Mr. TRASK. I was in the Republican head-quarters one day, at the time when the "fusion" was making its first primrose approaches, when HENRY WILSON, G. P. BURNHAM, EDWARD HAMILTON, and other Republican notabilities were present; and one of those flaming hand-bills, with which politicians gull the groundlings, was brought in to be examined, and headed "BANKS and TRASK!" calling a meeting, or for some such purpose. The very first sight of it threw all the lions in the den into a rage that would have cowed JULES GERARD himself if he could have witnessed it. You would have thought they were about to lose their feed instead of being on the eve of rending their prey. Their manes rose, their tails lashed, their eyes glared and their teeth were displayed most savagely. They would have none of Trask—not they; and so the handbill came out "Banks and Blank!" I think, though, they had finally to swallow the man, if they wouldn't his name. To an old stager like myself, the exhibition was as pleasant as a caricature by CRUIKSHANK, or a broadside in Punch. It was a little piece of history, an illustration of the times; and if the same sentiment exists now, and can be indulged better than then, I should say that the Lieutenant-Governor is not in a way to rise. Yet Governor BANKS, who never yet tolerated a man of ability in his vicinity, and never will do so, may compel his party to place Mr. TRASK in a position which shall make him our next Governor by the voice of fate. The Governor holds his party's nose to the grindstone in fine style, and they are free to do as they please so long as they obey his orders.

MOHAMMED PASHA's excursion "down the harbor," on the 26th, was not marked by anything particular, save that the weather was so cold that the Pasha was nearly frozen to death. He was graciously pleased to inquire what our Winters were, if that day belonged to the close of Spring. He wore a monkey jacket.

It is not believed here that we shall have a war with England, and for this, among other reasons, that we should, for the first six months of a contest, be beaten to pumice. Relatively, we are not so fit for a war with her now as we were in 1812. Weak as our navy then was, it could, had all the available vessels in it been united, have destroyed all the British vessels in American waters, and have retained command of those waters for months. Could our Navy do so now? He would be a bold man who should answer yes. Senator WILSON has done himself no good by screeching with the war-hawks of the Senate.

The "census of children" in Gloucester shows that there are in that town 2,035 persons between the ages of five and fifteen, being an increase of 72 in one year. Gloucester is the fishing town of America, so that the withdrawal of the fishing bounties does not operate badly there. The people will "still live," (and increase,) and the fish will still bite, in spite of the sectional legislation of the Senate under the lead of Mr. CLEMENT C. CLAY.

There were but 58 deaths in Boston last week, 17 of which were of children under 1 year. Fourteen persons died of consumption. But for the severity of the weather, the East wind prevailing every hour of every day, I believe, it is probable the number of deaths would have been considerably less. Boston is not a very easy city to live in, but it is a hard one to die in.

May goes out prettily with us, though the wind has got back to the East again since 8 o'clock, up to which time it was coquetting with the South like an aspirant to the Presidency. We had frost some mornings last week, and I am told there was some this morning, but I didn't see it. The apple trees are in bloom, but if white blossoms indicate no fruit, as some say is the fact, then we shall not have much of it in this vicinity in this year of grace 1858.

The third volume of Mr. PRESCOTT's Philip the Second will be published some time in course of the present year, probably towards its close, making three years after the appearance of the first and second volumes. Two volumes were expected, but it seems the author prefers to give but one. This volume will bring the work down to about 1572, the year of St. Bartholomew, and that which followed Lepanto. But the subject has so many branches that it is scarcely possible that it should be within any man's power to make square work with it, so that the author may have to fall back upon some one of those branches or run ahead of his main subject. Mr. PRESCOTT expects, I understand, to complete the work in five volumes, but I think he will be a little disappointed in his expectation. On the scale which the first two volumes are written, it might be possible to get the whole work into five volumes, but it increases in importance as it goes on, as do most historical subjects. About a volume and a half have been given to the first thirteen years of Philip's reign, and that reign lasted forty-three years; and the weight of it was on the last five and twenty years, in which took place the war with England, the conquest of Portugal, the connection with the Catholic League in France, the greater part of the Dutch contest, the affair of ANTONIO PEREZ, etc., etc. A notable instance of the difference there often is between calculations and results in literary matters, is afforded by GROTE's "Greece," which was to have been finished in eight volumes, and was only got into twelve by the omission of chapters on PLATO and ARISTOTLE, which the author had specifically promised, and even as it is, the closing part of the work is somewhat slurred over. THIERS's work on Napoleon's Consulate and Empire is half as large again as he meant originally to make it. The history of the reign of Philip the Second is, even more than that of Napoleon, the history of the civilized world during the most important period that had occurred for centuries, and it cannot be abridged either to the reader's advantage, or to the enhancement of the writer's reputation. We, who have not access to rare works and manuscript authorities, would like to know from those who have, something of the secret causes of the events of that age, which were very different from the ostensible cause thereof. Every man who has had any thing to do with politics, knows that there is a vast difference between the popular idea of what truth is, and what truth is in reality. The history of every great age is written, but it is rarely printed. It is written by actors in it, and not by authors.

THYME.

Dr. Hare and the American Association.

NEW YORK, Friday, May 28, 1858.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The writer of the obituary notice of the late Dr HARE, of Philadelphia, and your correspondent "Nassau," make conflicting statements, with regard to the appearance of the venerable and learned Doctor, before the American Society for the Advancement of Science.

By rule of that body, all topics coming before it must be of a scientific nature, and must come through the Standing Committee of that body. The Doctor wished to bring the subject of spiritualism directly before the Association. For the two reasons above, the Association refused. But after adjournment, the gentlemen comprising that Association, with Professor DAVIS in the Chair, gave the Doctor a long and patient hearing. The Assembly Room of the Capitol at Albany was well filled with a large and intelligent audience.

The Doctor went over the same ground of his celebrated lecture delivered in the Tabernacle of this City. He exhibited his "spiritoscope," which was NOT "moved intelligently without physical cause," in the presence of that audience. Neither did he claim that it was, only that it had been in Philadelphia and elsewhere.

Many, if not all of that audience felt, as your present correspondent felt, that until they saw that machine move without visible cause, and had opportunity to examine it carefully, attentively, and for a reasonable long time, they must be excused for believing the venerable lecturer, with all his science, was deceived, or laboring under a delusion, as many a worthy man has been before his time, and probably will be hereafter.

Yours, truly,

A MEMBER WHO WAS PRESENT.

Shipping Direct from Cleveland to Europe—Weather and Crops.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

CLEVELAND, Saturday, May 29, 1858.

Four sailing craft set sail for Europe, two of which were schooner-rigged and two were brigantine. The schooners bore the names of D. B. Sexton and Correspondent, and the brigantines those of H. D. Hone and D. C. Pierce. Two of these vessels are laden with black walnut timber, in square bolts, designed for the English market; one is freighted with wheat, the fourth will take a mixed cargo from our Western ports.

This is truly a new era in our Lake commerce, although Cleveland has sent her vessels around Cape Horn, and several have heretofore been engaged in a direct trade between this port and England. Last evening the brig C. J. Kershaw arrived with a cargo of merchandise direct from Liverpool. It will be remembered that the Kershaw, on her outward passage, was pronounced at Quebec to be too shallow-built to stand the swells of the Atlantic, but she proved herself to be a most excellent sailer, and capable in every respect to traverse the ocean with equal safety and facility with any other craft; it will be remembered that she rode out one of the heaviest storms of the past season, while other and more stately appearing craft have never been heard from. It may be an enterprise of doubtful utility, but the spirit of engaging in this foreign trade is now fully up among our ship-builders and capitalists, and the expediency of the measure will be thoroughly tested before they give it up. Perhaps the lack of a home trade has induced our commercial men to try the foreign.

Cleveland feels keenly the evil times upon which we have fallen, but every one flatters himself that he is no worse off than his neighbors in other Western towns. The long-continued rains have discouraged many farmers here and elsewhere. The whole surface of the country is completely drenched, saturated and submerged. The prairies of Illinois and Iowa look like vast lakes, with a profusion of islands interspersed. Everybody vainly asks of his neighbor, "when will the rain cease?" God grant that it may soon.

Yours, &c. OHIO.

At the last meeting of the Boston Society of Natural History, Professor Agassiz, in reply to a question from Dr. C. T. Jackson, whether the fishes of the European coast could be transplanted to the shores of America, said that it was extremely doubtful. From a general point of view he would not suppose that any family of fishes which have no representatives here could flourish on this coast; but that perhaps fish belonging to the same family with the haddock and hake might be naturalized.

YALE COLLEGE.

Death of E. S. Bartholomew—Art Exhibition—Union Regatta—Poem by Willis!

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

NEW-HAVEN, Saturday, May 29, 1858.

Letters received here a day or two since from a gentleman of this City, at present traveling in Italy, bring the melancholy announcement of the death of E. S. BARTHOLOMEW, one of the most promising of our American Sculptors. Few better illustrations are afforded of the indomitable energy of genius when combined with the earnestness of the American character, than that we have in Mr. B.'s history. His early life was spent in Colchester, of this State. After removing to Hartford, where he resided previously to going abroad, his taste for the fine arts rapidly developed itself, and though in needy circumstances, with a mother and sisters dependant on him for support, he determined to go to Europe to gain an opportunity for the development of the talent of the possession of which he felt conscious. Scraping together means barely sufficient to reach his destination, he embarked for Italy in a wretched craft, and after a tedious voyage, at length reached the Old World, almost in a state of destitution. Having succeeded in making his way to Rome, his talents were not long in asserting their superiority. But eight or ten years were sufficient to bring him from this position and place him in the front rank of the American Sculptors. Some eight months since he made a brief visit to this country, returning to Italy the 9th of last December. He took out with him orders to a large amount, and in a letter lying before me, expresses the hope that a year would so far relieve the pressure of his engagements that he might be permitted to visit America again next Spring. The 28th of March, he left Rome for Naples, hoping that a disease of the throat, from which he had for some time been suffering and which probably was a remote result of a violent attack of small-pox, experienced some years previously, would be alleviated by the change of atmosphere. Only two days before his death, he rode out for the purpose of changing his boarding place. Immediately afterwards he suffered a relapse, and died Sunday, the 2d of May. He was buried in Naples, Tuesday, the 4th of May. During his illness he received every attention from his American friends. Two English physicians also attended him gratuitously. While residing in Rome, Mr. B. led the choir in the American Chapel. The works by which he is most extensively known, are the statue of Washington, in Baltimore, and "Eve," the property of a gentleman in Philadelphia. The public know him only by his works. His personal acquaintances, of whom he has a number in this city, express the highest admiration of his character as a man. While he possessed warm impulses and a highly sensitive nature, he was at the same time perfectly free from those peculiarities which so often unfortunately mark men of his genius. Yale College feels a peculiar interest in this sad occurrence, as two of the works which have most lately passed under his hands were destined for the halls of one of her literary societies, Linonia ——. The works referred to are copies of two antiques, "Demosthenes" and "Sophocles"—the one in the Museum of the Vatican, and the other in the Lateran Museum at Rome. D. C GILMAN, Esq., when in Rome some months since, was commissioned by the Linonian Society to procure some ornaments which should be in keeping with the purposes for which their hall was designed. On naming the subject to Mr. BARTHOLOMEW, he entered into the project with great zeal and interest, and suggested the two above-named antiques as exceedingly appropriate. He was immediately commissioned to execute copies, and but a few weeks since a letter was received from him announcing their completion. These statues are now expected daily, and as their arrival will be an event in the history of the College, it has been determined to celebrate it in an appropriate manner. For this purpose an Exhibition of Art has been projected, the arrangements for which are already far advanced. Inasmuch as the Exhibition is designed for the benefit of the College and its community at large, the Resident Committee is made up of Brothers Linonians and gentlemen belonging to the city. Among them are, President Woolsey, Professors Olmsted, E. E. Salisbury, B. Silliman, Jr.; Messrs. A. N. Skinner, F. J. Betts, R. S. Fellowes, H. C. Kingsley, D. G. Mitchell, W. L. Kingsley and D. C. Gilman. The Non-resident Committee consists of His Excellency, W. A. Buckingham, of Norwich; D. W. Coit, Esq., of Norwich; the Hon. H C. Deming, of Hartford; the Hon. C. J. McCurdy, of Lyme; Professor S. F. B. Morse, of Poughkeepsie; and R. Sanford, Esq., of New-York. The Exhibition is to be in Calliope Hall, in the Alumni building, a room admirably adapted for such a use. It is proposed to open the Exhibition the middle of June, and to continue it until after Commencement, closing August 14. The rare paintings already pledged, both by those residing in this city and abroad, promise a display which will be no ordinary attraction to those who may visit the city during the Summer. In their circular, the Committee solicit the loan of meritorious works in any department of the fine-arts, from the friends of the College and the lovers of art generally. They pledge themselves to take the utmost care of the collection, and to make all arrangements for packing, transporting and insuring whatever works may be intrusted to their care, without any expense to the owner. D. C. GILMAN, Esq., is Secretary of the Executive Committee. Professor E. E. SALISBURY, than whom no more appropriate one could have been chosen, is to deliver a discourse at the opening of the Exhibition. It is expected a course of lectures on Art will follow.

As another attraction for those intending to attend the Commencement Exercises the present Summer, I may mention that Mr. BUTLER, the author of Nothing to Wear, who was appointed to deliver the oration before the Phi Beta Kappa Society, has not only signified his determination to accept the appointment, but has also expressed a willingness to occupy the whole evening. This arrangement will not only be agreeable to those expecting to listen to Mr. B., but as matters have turned out as regards the orator appointed to share in the responsibility of the occasion, delivers the Society from some embarrassment. Prof. FELTON, of Cambridge, had accepted the invitation, but his health obliging him to go to Europe, it became necessary to appeal to his substitute, Judge W. D. STRONG, of Pennsylvania. The latter gentleman declined the honor, and a gap would have been left which it might have been difficult to fill had it not been for the present arrangement.

Wherever the English Universities are known their regattas are heard of. The contests, in past years, between Harvard and Yale, have given some celebrity to the navies of these two Colleges, and those who feel at all interested in sports of this character will be rejoiced to hear that all the preliminary arrangements have been made for a Union Regatta, which it is intended shall become a permanent institution. The project was first broached by circular letters from Harvard to all Colleges whose situation permits them to maintain a navy. These letters met with a cordial response, and last Wednesday delegates from Harvard, Trinity and Brown met here, and after due consultation, adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, That there be a regatta instituted between the Colleges of the Union, and that at each regatta the time of the next regatta be determined.

Resolved, That the regatta this year take place on Friday, July 23, at 4½ P. M.

Resolved, That it take place at Springfield, provided the city holds out sufficient pecuniary inducements.

Resolved, That the following be the Regatta rules.

The race shall be by undergraduates of the College (meaning, by undergraduates, the four classes in the Academical Department.)

Each College shall enter as many boats as they wish. Boats may carry coxswains or not, as they please.

The course shall be three statute miles in length, and two courses shall be previously surveyed; the one straight, the other 1½ miles and repeat—entire to be rowed according to the day.

The position of the boats shall be determined by lot.

An allowance of 12 seconds per oar shall be made in favor of smaller boats.

Any boat crossing another's bow so as to make her thereby alter her course, shall be disqualified to take the prize.

Each College entering shall appoint an umpire—those umpires shall choose a referee.

A set of silk colors, with a suitable inscription, shall be procured by a committee to be presented to the winning boat, the expenses thereof not exceeding twenty-five dollars, to be paid as an entrance fee by the boats entering the regatta.

The vacation at Dartmouth prevented the attendance of any delegate from that college. Columbia College had no delegate present, but it is believed both of these colleges, as well as Bowdoin College and the University of Pennsylvania will take part in the regatta. It is expected that the hotel proprietors at Springfield will contribute liberally toward the necessary expenses, and that the railroads will issue excursion tickets, as is customary in such cases. Physical training is too much neglected in our institutions of learning, and it is to be hoped that this regatta, by becoming a permanent institution, will draw more attention to this manly exercise than it has hitherto received.

MONDAY, MAY 31.—We are beginning to see the fruits of the revival of the last term in the number yesterday propounded for admission to the church. The numbers are as follows:

From the Law Department	1	Sophomores	11
Seniors	10	Freshmen	17
Juniors	13	Total	52

A number of the students have also made professions of religion at their respective homes.

The editors of the Yale Literary Magazine in the junior class issue the first number, for which they are responsible, with a commendable degree of punctuality. It contains, among other articles, a poem by N. P. WILLIS never before published.

The Georgia papers are divided in opinion on the subject of the lotteries in that State. The recent action of Mayor Tiemann has stirred up a hornet's nest. The Atlanta American calls the lotteries "illicit gambling concerns" and "swindling shops," and declares their days are numbered.

The Mammoth Opera Scheme.

NEW-YORK, Saturday, May 29, 1858.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The announcement of the Barnum-Lumley Opera speculation which you published some days ago, and which the Herald (knowing nothing about the matter) promptly pooh-poohed, turns out to be correct. Mr. BARNUM's card is before the public; and the Musical communities of New-York, Boston and Philadelphia are particularly appealed to to lend their patronage to a scheme which is certainly dazzling. Would it not be well, however, to ask ourselves a few questions concerning the desirableness of this large importation of artists before we promise too eagerly to subscribe for tickets at five dollars a night? May we not, with the best of intentions, pay too much for our whistle?

Mr. LUMLEY's Company is undoubtedly a fine one, and composed of artists who are preëminently popular. It may, therefore, be considered the best for American purposes. PICCOLOMINI and GIUGLINI are its great lights—and their youthful voices would commend them to the favor of our public. TITIENS, in a higher and colder walk of art, has obtained a newspaper reputation, which may or may not be confirmed. Let us, however, for the sake of argument, throw in TITIENS. Here, then, we have three artists—two soprani and one tenor—of admitted reputations. For their services Mr. BARNUM proposes to tax the patrons of the Opera to the tune of five dollars a night.

To this it comes in the end. Mr. LUMLEY has no general artists superior to those now in this country; and, I may add, that in the same number of years he has not had better than we have had.

Have you, Sir, looked into the prospectus? Have you noticed the insolent assumption that we are helpless and destitute in art-matters, and that it is absolutely necessary to fit out an expedition, complete in all its departments, like those sent from a civilized to a savage land? Not only are we to have the "grand opera and ballet" artists, but we are to be favored with Mr. LUMLEY's conductor, (who enjoys the enviable reputation of being the worst in London—unless, indeed, he sends us ARDITI, our old chef—who was not considered good enough in New-York, but succeeded in London;) with the principal solo players from his orchestra; with the principal members of his chorus; with his entire music; his costly wardrobe; his properties; and, lastly, his scene painters! It bespeaks a wonderful amount of confidence in our resources as a nation, that Mr. LUMLEY did not bargain for the transfer of his lamp-lighters, his door-keepers and his scene-shifters. He will, of course, bring over his posters ready printed, and his play bills with "Vivat Regina" at the bottom, and his apple stands to line the footpaths, and a man with baked potatoes to ply a humble vocation at the corner.

What necessity have we for this heavy importation, amounting to a hundred and forty-eight persons (half of them servants of course?) Not the slightest in the world. We have two conductors in this city, MAX MARETZEK and CARL ANSCHUTZ, either of whom is better than any Mr. LUMLEY can bring, unless indeed, he secures the services of COSTA. Our solo players are so good, that JULLIEN (who fell into the error of importing half a hundred) declared that he did not wish better. Our chorus is not very good; nor is Mr LUMLEY's; they are probably equal in ability. With regard to music, the library of the Academy of Music, or the private collections of Messrs. ULLMAN and MARETZEK, contain all the operas that are now popular—with the single exception of the Italian version of BALFE's "Bohemian Girl." With regard to wardrobe, that at the Academy of Music is splendid and complete. In "properties" we are not quite so particular in this country as they are in England, and Mr LUMLEY might bring a few baskets-full for our instruction. As for scenery, I have no hesitation in saying that we shall be able not only to astonish Mr. LUMLEY, but also Mr. LUMLEY's artists. I am not at all unmindful of the splendid scenic productions of Her Majesty's Theatre when I make this assertion. But I know also that there is no theatre in Europe which possesses finer scenery than does our Academy. There is not much of it, but it will be sufficient for the ten operas which Mr. LUMLEY proposes to play.

Was I not right in saying that we are to pay five dollars apiece for hearing three singers? But I have not mentioned the Ballet—that pet attraction of an aristocracy past the middle age, but yet vicious. Hitherto we have denied the soft impeachment of twinkling legs, and have failed to appreciate that stimulating "poetry of motion" which bald-headed Peers discover through the powerful glasses of their lorgnettes. We are behind the age in this matter, no doubt; and if Mr. LUMLEY supplies the same conveniences for going behind the scenes of the Academy that he does at his London establishment, we may pick up something of this special knowledge. It is certain that all attempts at ballet have failed heretofore, particularly when introduced at the Opera. As a separate entertainment it succeeds no better;—witness the Ronzani Troupe, which, when it came here, was probably the best and most complete Ballet company in the world. It failed, and Mr. LUMLEY's ballet will fail,—at least that is my humble opinion. Of one thing I am certain, the Academy of Music will lose many of its best patrons if this new feature be thrust upon the stage; and at all events it is so clearly a superfluity that it is a shame to tax the opera-goers with its support.

Dispensing thus, as we can well afford to do, with 145 out of 148 artists of the budget, is it worth while to pay five dollars for hearing the remaining three? Are they so much better than SONTAG, ALBONI, BOSIO, GRISI, MARIO, SALVI, RONCONI, FORMES, and a score of others who have played with good operatic support, at a dollar and two dollars? Do we not propose to pay too much for our whistle?

AN OPERA-GOER.

Bribery in Wisconsin—A Word or Two in Behalf of the Model State.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I have just read two articles in your paper of May 21, entitled "Wholesale Corruption," and "Smooth Phrases." Now, Mr. Editor, I am a Wisconsinner myself, and though my sins consist in no part of bribery, given or received, I beg leave to say a word in extenuation of the facts you have commented on; for facts they are, I have no doubt.

But let me premise that "Lord BYRON," as we call Mr. President KILBOURN, is an original genius, and just the man to do up the "Smooth phrases." He is a grandson of "Poor JOHN FITCH," the original inventor of Steam Navigation, and has a good sprinkling of the inventive faculty of his illustrious progenitor. He has hit upon a decided improvement upon the old method, which was to employ the most loquacious and influential members of the Legislature as counsel to advocate and vote for a doubtful claim, which was always made large enough to cover such contingencies, thus: If a man had a doubtful claim for $1,000, he had only to call it $10,000, distribute $5,000 of it amongst members as counsel fees, and bag $5,000 himself. I have seen members stand in their places and advocate claims for five to ten per cent. of whatever they might get through the Legislature. Indeed, the time has been when it was nearly impossible for an honest claimant to get his just dues but by some such process, and I fear it is not much better now, and all persons having claims against the State of Wisconsin, whether bogus or bona fide, are bound to give thanks to Mr. KILBOURN for his improved method of saying things, if not of doing them.

In regard to the recent division of plunder in Wisconsin, our legislators and State officers very naturally inquired of their own mind what right a railroad company had to such a "pecuniary compliment" from Congress, more than themselves. "It is to aid the company in building a road," says the M. C. "But why bestow a gratuity upon a company for building a railroad, more than upon an individual for building a mill, or a hotel, or clearing up a new farm? We have done all these things without any 'pecuniary compliment' of this kind."

"But the railroad is a public convenience, and enhances the value of property in its vicinity."

"The same is true of a mill or a factory, or a block of stores."

"Yes; but these roads would not pay without the gratuities."

"The best reason in the world, then, why they should not be constructed. Do you call yourselves statesmen and bestow 'pecuniary compliments' upon companies of men to induce them to engage in a losing business? For what are you United States Senators and Representatives hanging about every State and Territorial Legislature that has a grant of this kind to appropriate, but to nurse your own 'pecuniary compliments' and to enforce a 'reciprocal liberality' previously expressed or understood? No, gentlemen; we understand the thing; it is a conspiracy between you and railroad speculators to plunder the public domain, and we have just as good a right to it as you and your accomplices; now, divide, or we will recede the grant."

[Railroad men and Congress men aside.

"Got us tight—what shall we do?"

"Propitiate their feelings as easily as we can."

Such, doubtless, was the reasoning of our Legislature and State officers, and such the comments of the original operators upon the justness of that reasoning. They might, and perhaps did go further, and reason that the grant being a clean steal from the people, it ought all to go to propitiate their feelings; but as this was supposed to be impossible, the next best thing that could be done was for the representatives of the people to get as large a share of it as possible; for clearly, the more widely the plunder could be distributed, the more nearly would it revert to the original owners. You will observe that the distribution was conducted strictly upon the representative principle. Members of the Assembly who represented but few, received but $5,000; Senators who represented many, received $10,000; whilst the Governor, who represented the whole State, received $50,000. Say what you will, Mr. Editor, I do not see how, under the circumstances, they could have devised a more equitable rule by which the plunder should revert, proximately, to the original owners.

I am not an over-modest son of Wisconsin, and yet I claim for her the "proud preëminence" in corruption and bribery, which you award to her. To say nothing of the numerous railroad grants by which Congressmen have made fortunes, and the people been robbed of their inheritance, the recent attempt to bribe the people of Kansas to bow their necks to a fundamental law which they detest, by the offer of a few million acres of extra lands, distances all competition. Wisconsin, I admit, is some pumpkins when viewed by herself; but, beside the Federal Government, she is but a grain of mustard seed. The evil orginated in Congress, and every grant of the kind, if its history were known, would present a similar concentration of corruption and bribery; and it is amazing that the people of the United States will sit still and see the inheritance of their children thus coolly divided up between members of Congress, railroad speculators, and State politicians, under the shallow pretext of aiding in the construction of railroads.

Southern Sophistries Concerning the Slave-Trade—Nice Distinctions.

From the Charleston Mercury.

Is the apprentice system—that is, importing Africans or Asiatics, as apprentices, into the West Indies or the United States—a Slave-trade? If it is, then Great Britain commenced it—France adopts it; and all the regulations and treaties to suppress the African Slave-trade are a ridiculous and costly farce. The sooner the shallow hypocrisy is ended, the better for all the nations of Christendom. For the attempt to enforce these treaties must produce contention and war. No nation of the least independence or dignity will submit to have enforced towards her, a treaty which is practically violated by the party attempting to enforce it. It is a mere insolence to claim of others the fulfillment of an agreement violated by the party claiming it. In our judgment, the whole apprentice system is nothing but the renewal of the Slave-trade. The free negroes, French or English, in the West Indies, will not labor. Efficient voluntary free African labor is discovered to be one of the myths of a fanciful humanity. To obtain coerced African labor for the cultivation of the great tropical productions so essential to the progress and civilization of the world, is the object of the apprentice system. The African is a slave in his own country—sold as a slave—bought as a slave; and whatever may be the forms adopted to introduce him as a slave in the West Indies, a slave he will be, and a slave he ought to be. If he is not a slave by name, he is yet linked to the most cruel of all bondages, where interest is, to a degree, opposed to humanity. His master is interested only to get out of him the greatest quantity of labor in a limited time; and all that care which our Slavery throws over the slave, in sickness or old age—all that moderation as to his labor, and that regard for his health, comfort and happiness, which Slavery extorts from interest itself, is lost to the unhappy apprentice. But whether in this shape, or as it exists here, we do not doubt that, practically, all Africans introduced into the West Indies—French or English—are slaves, and are brought there because they can furnish the coerced labor of slaves.

If this is a correct view of the importation of Africans under the name of apprentices, into the West Indies, with what grace can France or England presume to talk of suppressing the African Slave-trade? They have revived it, and to them must the world be indebted for its renewal amongst the nations of the world. Can the statesmen of these nations be so silly as to suppose that other nations, interested in the tropical productions, will stand still and see them stock their colonies with African labor, and thereby undersell them in the markets of the world, whilst they shall make no efforts to keep up their equality (or monopoly, if you please to call it) in affording these productions. The jugglery of parchment and paper can do a great deal when backed by force; but force in such an enterprise can only end in shame and discomfiture.

But let us take the other horn of the dilemma. Let us suppose that the importation of Africans from the coast of Africa is not the African Slave-trade. Then what right has Great Britain to attempt to prevent it? What right has even the United States to attempt to control it, in the ports of the United States? May not a vessel be fitted out in broad day, in any port of the United States, to bring in emigrants or apprentices from Africa, as freely as vessels are daily fitted out to bring in emigrants from Europe? What law of the United States does such an enterprise violate? Nothing is more common than for agents of manufacturing mills at the North, to go to Europe or Canada, and to import into the United States hundreds of laborers, apprenticed for a certain term to work in their mills. Shall not the agriculturist of the South have the privilege to do the same thing on the coast of Africa? Apprenticed Africans are not slaves. The trade is not a Slave-trade. It is not illegal—it is not in conflict with any of our treaties with France or England, who do the same thing. It is not piracy. It is a fair, lawful transaction, open to the people of the United States, and may be promoted by the legislation of the States. An African is as free to emigrate to the United States as a European, and an American ship can as lawfully bear him over the Atlantic as bring a Europeau. The ship is as sacred from search or seizure as if loaded with palm oil or cotton. It is in this view that the insolence of the British cruisers in the Gulf of Mexico, in stopping and searching our coasters, is most flagrant. Suppose the allegation to be true that apprenticed Africans are being brought over from Africa to the Southern ports of the United States, what right has Great Britain to interfere? We are only doing what she and France are doing; and, on their high authority, are in no way engaged in the African Slave-trade. If her cruisers saw American ships in the Gulf of Mexico loaded down to the gunwales with Africans, what ought they to presume? Why, that we are importing apprentices from a barbarous and bloody destiny, to the mild dominion of the Southern planter. We are imitating their example. We are as full of philanthropy, and as faithful to our treaty obligations as they are. Instead of firing into our ships, they should see in them the reflex of their own pure and high humanity, and cheer them on to their destined homes. But if they intend to fabricate one code of morals and law for us, and another for their own use and that of France—if, with similar treaties with France, they neither on the coast of Africa, nor near Guadaloupe or Martinique, think proper to interfere with French ships loaded with Africans, but turn their interference and supervision only to the waters and ships of the United States—if, when they import African apprentices from Sierre Leone into Jamaica, it is lawful and just, and humane, and in no sense the African Slave-trade; but when citizens of the United States import them from the same vicinage, it is cruel and barbarous, and so flagrant a violation of the laws prohibiting the African Slave-trade, as to justify their interposition on our coast by cannon-ball and the halter—we can only say, go on! The people of the United States—the people of the Southern States—understand the game, and will most assuredly defeat it.

An Independent Southern Organ—Fearful Assault Upon the North.

From the Mobile Mercury, May 24.

THE NEW-YORK TIMES AND SOUTHERN CONVENTIONS.—The New-York Times is edited by a corps of men whose knowledge is evidently Cyclopædianic—or, perhaps we should say, Cyclopean—so wonderful is its extent, so awful its profundity and so brilliant are its scintillations in the process of being worked up into double-columned editorials. They can not only give us long and learned dessertations on everything that exists, but they can also spin off at a moment's notice the most ingenious and astonishing impromptus on a great variety of matters that never did and never can exist. They can tell you the merits of any question, however intricate and knotty, at a single glance, and decide with equal facility on the tendency and significance of affairs that are taking place at the "fartest end" or at the antipodes, as in the immediate vicinity of their sanctum in Park Row, New-York.

These remarkable geniuses have been exercising their wits of late—say about three times a week—on the present and prospective condition of the Slave-holding States in general, and on the purposes and utility of our Southern Conventions in particular. Our last Montgomery Convention especially—notwithstanding they dispatched a reporter a thousand miles to take note of its proceedings—most decidedly fails to meet their approbation.

They communicate the surprising information, as original as it is edifying, that the Southern people are fond of talking—too fond of abstractions and that they are not sufficiently practical—in a word, that they are decidedly "slow." In other words, because every Southern town and village does not contain a "Wall-street," where a den of thieves, calling themselves "brokers" and "bankers," every day congregate for a grand gambling and swindling match—because our papers are not filled with some astonishing SCHUYLER or HUNTINGTON exposure, or with the sayings and doings of an assembly of some new-fangled, social and religious brotherhood or sisterhood of lunatics and bedlamites, bent on reforming the world, the moon and the stars, and recreating God's creation over again—because we have no "ninety-columned Dailies," overrunning and reeking with a chaos of crime and folly in every stage of wickedness and depravity—we are, therefore, not a "pracical people!"

If to be "fast" the Southern people must have their Rev. Infidel Theodore Parkers, their Rev. Harlequin Ward Beechers, their societies of women dressed in epicene apparel, strolling and vagabondizing over the country, prating of women's rights and of the beauties of Free-Loveism, and if the very genius of tomfoolery, in all its phases and varieties, is to be worshipped as the Jupiter Optimus Maximus of their religion, then we earnestly hope that, for a very long time to come, the "abstractionists" and "impractical" people of the South will remain "abstractionists," "impractical" and "slow."

These very facetious people of the TIMES very facetiously inform us that though we of the Southern Convention may debate about the Slave-trade, and discuss the probable effects of its reëstablishment to our heart's content, yet, should we ever go so far as to attempt to carry our views into effect, they—the people of the North—and Europe would certainly "prevent it, as they would prevent any other crime of equal magnitude."

Who will deny now that these New-York editors are very amusing and entertaining writers? The idea of such a Europe as that in which an England rules and riots in India, an Austria holds a rod of iron over enslaved dependencies, and a NAPOLEON III. wields the sceptre of a despot; where the worst form of real Slavery exists that the sun looks down upon—the idea, we say, of such a Europe, which is at this very moment buying and stealing both black and white slaves, and conveying them to her West India Colonies, combining with the Northern "Plug Uglies" to "prevent" the South from doing anything which she, in the exercise of her good pleasure might elect to do—is, to say the least of it, most particularly refreshing and rich!

We do not believe, however, that the TIMES' people are really in sober earnest. We think we may safely prophesy that the most serious "preventing" which they will ever undertake, will be confined to the batting of the "bulls and bears" in Wall-street—affairs in which pocket-philanthrophy and the patriotism of an empty purse are the only motives of action.

THE BORDER WARFARE IN KANSAS.

Full Particulars of the Acts of Montgomery's Men—Five Free-State Men Killed in Linn County, and Five Others Wounded.

Correspondence of the Missouri Democrat.

LEAVENWORTH CITY, Kansas, Monday, May 24, 1858.

MONTGOMERY'S mounted corps at Sugar Creek are undoubtedly a small band of highwaymen—and we hope that no respectable New-York or St. Louis journal will undertake to apologize for their petty rascalities. But the attempt to fasten their acts upon the Free-State men of the Territory is simply absurd. They are a few congregated bad men who levy blackmail indiscriminately. Let me mention one or two of their late exploits: A Kentuckian of the name of QUIDNUCK, (the name may not be spelled correctly,) a stranger in the Territory, was traveling in the neighborhood of Sugar Creek, when he was set upon by a band of these marauders. He was in search of a claim to settle upon with his family, having previously sold his property in Kentucky. With one pistol to his breast and one to his side they interrogated him as to his business. Pretending to be dissatisfied with his answers, they ordered him to open a small valise which he carried in his hand. He was not sufficiently prompt it seems, so they snatched it from him and opened it themselves. It contained his clothing and $305 in gold coin, the latter in a pocket book. They took both the money and clothes, and as they rode off told him to leave the Territory. In the act of dismounting one of them had inadvertently dropped two newspapers—they had fallen out of his pocket—which QUIDNUCK picked up when they had gone out of sight. The name DYER—a name conspicuous in Montgomery's band—was written on both papers. This is the substance of a statement in detail made under oath by QUIDNUCK, before the Grand Jury recently convened at Fort Scott; and upon which an indictment for robbery against DYER was found immediately. My informant, who is a gentleman of position, (in politics a Free-State Democrat,) assured me that the Republicans were represented on the Grand Jury of which he also was a member, and present when QUIDNUCK gave his statement.

But the calendar of their crimes contains worse acts than this. In the case of QUIDNUCK, they robbed a poor man and a stranger. Fortunately they did not search his person. He had about a hundred dollars in his pocket, with which he has since purchased a claim. They merely robbed the poor man, but in a more recent case they exhibited the most brutal conduct. While plundering the house of a Free-State man, they encountered some slight resistance from his wife—slight, indeed, it must have been—who, it seems, is a woman of spirit. The brutal set revenged themselves, by compelling her, under pain of instant death, to strip naked and pace up and down for a stated time between their ranks. Did woman ever yet endure such degradation in a Christian land? The most lustful tribe of Indians, whose prisoners run the gauntlet of the double file, would scorn such hideous and unmanly cruelty towards a woman. The precedent was furnished by the Sepoys of Delhi and Cawnpore, but they are fanatical idolators, who adore Vishnu, the libidinous and destroying God.

The outrage which I have briefly described is of such an aggravated and unusual character, that its reality may be questioned. I do not doubt it, though by no means disposed to be credulous. It is true my informant was not an eye-witness, but he is a Free-State leader, and he feels so deeply in relation to these Fort Scott matters, that he has called on Gov. DENVER and offered him the services of any number of Free-State men which might be necessary for the extirpation of the miscreants. The Free State Party regard them with abhorrence.

It is somewhat strange that Gov. DENVER refuses to summon the military at Fort Scott to assist in capturing MONTGOMERY and his handful of brigands. He says the troops are inefficient in the case. If they march to a certain place, they find nobody there whom they want to find, the guilty anticipating the visit by flight. It must be confessed that, heretofore, the army has been too freely used by the civil power in Kansas, and it is only under extraordinary circumstances that its employment is justifiable in aid of the constable or sheriff. It may be that prudence forbids its employment now for the purpose of restoring law and order in Linn and Bourbon Counties. But the Governor is indisposed to take any action in the matter, and this exposes him to a very grave suspicion.

From the Laurence Republican, Extra, May 23d.

MONEKA, Linn Co., K. T. Thursday, May 20, 1858.

Yesterday a party of Pro-Slavery men from Missouri, came into the "Trading Post," situated on the military road leading from Fort Scott to Fort Leavenworth, where it crosses the Osage river, about three miles from the State line. They were not seen till they emerged from the timber and rode up to the store. Here they took Mr. G. W. ANDREWS and JOHN F. CAMPBELL prisoners. They then started on the road towards Kansas City. They overtook here a Mr. STILWELL, from Sugar Mound, who was going up the river for a load of provisions. They took him prisoner, and ordered the others to get into his wagon and ride. In a half a mile further they came to a missionary by the name of Rev. CHARLES READ. They ordered him into the wagon and dismissed ANDREWS. They continued on for two miles and a half, when they had taken 12 men.

These men had been taken when at their work, without resistance and unarmed, and had never been implicated in the troubles in Kansas. They were conservative men.

On arriving at a deep ravine, in a skirt of timber, the commander called a halt. The prisoners were formed into line, about five yards in advance of the horsemen.

The command was given to "Present arms!—fire!" Every man dropped. Four were killed dead!—all but one of the others were badly wounded. The ruffians then wheeled their horses and galloped off. In a few minutes three of them returned, and searchd their victims for money. They kicked the men, and rolled them over very roughly to see if they were dead. Finding one only slightly wounded, a ruffian put a revolver to his ear and fired, remarking that he had always found that the most certain shot he could make. He took the key of the safe out of CAMPBELL's pocket, saying "there was money in that safe, and he would come back some night and get it."

The names of the killed are:

1. WILLIAM STILLWELL, of Sugar Mound, recently from Iowa. He is a young man, with a young and beautiful wife, and two young children. He felt perfectly safe, remarking to a companion that "he was a Free Mason;" and it is said that a Free Mason, Dr. HAMILTON, of Fort Scott, shot him. He was killed with a double-barreled shot-gun, loaded with pistol balls, the charge entering his left breast. He was highly esteemed in this neighborhood, and his death will be avenged.
2. PATRICK ROSS was an Irishman, and had been driven from his claim on the Little Osage by the same gang.
3. Mr. COLPETZER was a farmer from Pennsylvania.
4. MICHAEL ROBINSON the same, from Iowa.
5. JOHN F. CAMPBELL, a store-keeper, from Pennsylvania. He was a young man highly esteemed, and had no family.

The wounded are WILLIAM HARGROVE and his brother, ASA HARGROVE, formerly of Georgia, who came here to live in a Free State. This is the head and front of their offending. Also, the Rev. CHARLES READ, a Baptist preacher from Wisconsin, who moved into that place a week ago. He was badly wounded and crept into the woods and was not found till morning. AMOS HALL and his brother, AUSTIN HALL, who was not hurt, but fell from prudential reasons. CHAS. SNYDER was slightly hurt in the leg and back.

The ruffian band was led by BROCKETT, of Fort Scott, and accompanied by Dr. HAMILTON and others of that place, who have made themselves notorious for two years past. There were twenty-five in all, and they were well acquainted with the men whom they killed, excepting STILLWELL. Eight of them lived in Kansas, and seventeen in Missouri. Most of these seventeen lived in and around Westport. This place was the Border-Ruffian head-quarters in 1856, having a blue lodge, and being the rendezvous of the Southern army of invasion under Gen. CLARK, and the secret chamber of the "Council of Ten," who decided the fate of prisoners and of settlers during that gloomy year.

The murders were committed yesterday at one o'clock. The news spread like wild-fire over the country, and before midnight three hundred armed men had assembled at the trading post. Scouts were sent into Missouri, but no clue could be found of their retreat. Most of the people in the State condemned the act, and were willing we should take them if we could. It is supposed the ruffians are at Westport, and our men are marching on that place, with the intention of taking them—peaceably if we can, and forcibly if we must. Captain MONTGOMERY and his men are here. The other citizens generally are not organized. There are no arms in the country except sporting-guns, and not half of the men have those. Brig.-Gen. McDANIEL is with the company, but having no military knowledge, he does not attempt any organization or discipline. The men, however, being determined to fight, will go on, whether they have officers or not.

R. B. MITCHEL is taking an honorable part, and is aiding Gen. McDANIEL.

Drs. BANFORD and WEAVER attended the wounded men.

The ruffians swear there shall be no crops raised in Linn County this year, so you will see the necessity of sending us some arms. Crowds of men assembled who could not go for want of them. The old men were on hand to steady the boys, for it has come to this, that every man must fight or run. I noticed Mr. WATTLES, the Rev. Mr. ADDIS, Mr. AUTHUR, and several others of the old citizens and old men. A few of the timid may leave, but the general feeling is life or death in Kansas.

Preparations in Missouri for a Border War.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

ST. LOUIS, Monday, May 31.

Thirty boxes of muskets have been shipped from Jefferson City to the Border Counties, in charge of Quartermaster-General HACKNEY and Inspector General BLAKEY, with the inferred design of repelling the invasion of Missouri by marauding bands from Kansas. It is probable that the militia in some of the Western Counties may be called out.

A DETERMINED SUICIDE.—As the 6 P. M. train on the Hudson River Railroad was passing near Seventy-ninth-street, Monday evening, a man named James Johnson threw himself upon the track. Officer Wilson, of the Twenty-second Ward, happened to see him, and succeeded in pulling him off the track just in time to save his life. The rescued individual swore roundly at the officer for his impertinent interference, and immediately attempted to swallow the contents of a phial of sulphuric acid. The officer wrenched the poison from the man's hand, and then took him to the Station-house, where he was locked up. He refused to give any reason for the attempts on his life.

[illegible] Times New Buildings.—[illegible] who have not been in town [illegible] used to look at the gaunt steeple of [illegible] Church as one of the ancient landmarks that cannot be removed, would now be very pleasantly [illegible] at seeing in its place a handsome block of [illegible] edifices, the handsomest of which are those [illegible] and partially occupied by the New-York Times establishment. The Times Buildings, at the upper [illegible] of the block, facing the City Hall, are an ornament to the lower part of the City. In past years newspaper establishments have usually been in dingy, narrow streets, and their editorial offices in dark, cobwebbed rooms, at the upper end of several flights of stairs. The "Great Thunderer" of the British Press [illegible] paper which, it is said, could uncrown Queen Victoria—is printed in a dark, frowning building [illegible] a New-York newsboy would hardly deign to [illegible] in, at free lodgings. A new fashion has now been inaugurated in this respect, and although such [illegible] subscribers as have had occasion to visit No. [illegible]kman-street, have not found it the most sumptuous edifice in the world, yet we are glad that our [illegible] fortunate neighbors around the corner are in [illegible] enjoyment of their architectural scroll-work and [illegible] gilt letters. Our good-natured cotemporary [illegible] allow us to say that this voluntary comparison [illegible] only to the two newspaper establishments, [illegible] the newspapers themselves!—Independent.

Spirit of the Trade Circulars.

ABRAM KNIGHT & SON'S NAVAL STORES AND OIL CIRCULAR.

New-York, Tuesday, June 1, 1858.

Naval Stores.—Spirits Turpentine has improved and is in good demand at 46c. Common Resin is less active, but has advanced; lots afloat are selling at $1 45 and $1 50 from yard. Medium grades remain quiet. White and Pale are in fair demand at lower prices. No. 1, $2@$4; White and Pale, $5 50@$7 50 ꝑ 280 ℔s.

Oils—Crude Whale has somewhat declined during the week, and we note sales of 3,000 bbls. at the East, at 47c.@55c., as to quality. Crude Sperm is selling in small lots at $1 25 ꝑ gallon. Manufactured Oils remain quiet at former prices. Tallow Oils are in good demand, at 9¾c @9¾d., mostly at the latter, ꝑ ℔.

Tallow—The market is dull, and sales are confined to home consumption; small lots are selling at 10¼c., large lots at 10c.

M. RADER'S MONTHLY TOBACCO CIRCULAR.

New-York, Tuesday, June 1, 1858.

The receipts of Spanish Tobacco during the past month were very heavy, and although the sales of the early part were to a very fair extent, the incessant rains, and the coming-in of very full supplies, caused a decided disinclination to operate, as dealers moreover anticipate considerable concession in prices, which holders were unwilling to grant. We now have ample stock of old crop on hand to supply a moderate demand for some time, whilst still further additions are to be expected from the Island and some of the overstocked European markets. Several parcels of new crop Havana were offered, but varied very much in quality. 70 bales were exported for shippers' account; 119 bales sold at prices from 38c.@48c., duty paid. The demand for this sort will be mainly for the better grades, as an abundant supply of domestic wrappers, which are this year of superior quality, will be preferred to the ordinary wrappery sorts from the Island of Cuba. Havana fillers ranged between 30c @32c., and assorted old at 36c.@42½c. The prices of Cuba are less firm; Jiguani and the finer grades of Cuba, which sold at 24c.@25c., cannot be placed at over 23c.; St. Jago 21c.@22.c; Mayari 29c.; Baracoa 17c.@17½c.; several parcels having arrived also in Philadelphia and Baltimore, sufficient to supply those markets for the present. Of Sagua we have a large parcel on the market, which is held above the views of buyers. 177 bales Yara were realized at 31½c., the quality being inferior and mixed. Of Cienfuegos the stock is more than wanted; the quality offers little inducement, except at low figures. Of other sorts of foreign Tobacco, stocks are light; 380 ceroons of St. Domingo Leaf, and 235 bales of Manila were taken for export. In domestic Leaf some sales have been effected of new crop Seed Leaf, of which the great bulk is now in firm hands. Some 12@1,500 cases of Connecticut and Ohio wrappers were sold at 18c.@20c. for the former, and 13c.@15c. for the latter.

Kentucky Leaf—Old crop has been very firm and very little left in factors or jobbers' hands; the new crop will not be suitable for use for several months; it remains to see what our manufacturers will do for substitutes to get the needed supplies. New crop Kentucky is selling but sparingly, present prices leaving no room for speculation, and are considered too high to be maintained, the more so as the advices from New-Orleans are less confident, the accumulation of stock there being excessive, and reported at over 34,000 hhds.; it is, however, anticipated that a concession in prices will cause a renewal of purchases for foreign orders, whilst at the same time it is worthy of note that the greatest part of the crop has been brought to market at a much earlier period than formerly.

Quotations here are, new crop, Lugs, 7c.@7½c.; Common, 8c.@8½c.; Good, 9c.@10½c.; Fine to Select, 11c.@14c.; Maysville, 8c.@15c.

Live Stock Market Reports.

Albany Market, May 31.—Beeves—The offerings at the yard of D. D. T. Moré, were 1,753 head; the quality was decidedly better than those offering last week, there being no poor cattle among them, all being from good to first quality. The large offerings, however, affected prices unfavorably, and the range of prices was lower, say from 4½c.@5¼c. The business was not so active as last week. About 800 to 1,000 head went East.

Sheep—The number in market was 1,914 head; the demand took all offering, but at a decline on last week's rates. We quote 5c.@6c. ꝑ ℔., live weight.

Hogs—The receipts were 3,900 head—2,250 fat and 1,650 stores. The sales of fat Hogs were 1,100 head, at 4¾c.@5¾c. ꝑ ℔., live weight, the outside range being in advance of last week. Stores—1,000 head sold at $5@$5 31 ꝑ 100 ℔s., which is a decided advance on last week's figures.

Freights—The Propeller Line take Beeves at 25c. ꝑ head to New-York.

West Albany, Monday, May 31, 1858.

The following is a statement of the number of live stock received here via Central Railroad, for the week ending this day, May 31, for previous week, and since Jan. 1:

	This Week.	Last Week.	Since Jan. 1.
Beeves	3,216	2,552	46,483
Sheep	1,914	783	55,587
Hogs	3,900	4,590	93,372

Buffalo Market, May 31.—The receipts at this point for the past two or three weeks have been rather above the average number, and more business has been done, mainly on account of Eastern dealers. Sheep, also, have been in demand. Prices for both sheep and cattle may be considered steady. Receipts during the week ending May 29, 3,159 head of cattle, 4,156 hogs, and 1,179 sheep. The sales of cattle during the three weeks, include 1,000 head, in lots from different droves, at an average of about 4½c. gross; and 400 sheep at 5c. The demand for hogs has been active, mainly for "stock," and the market is steady. The receipts have been fair. Of the receipts, there were sent Eastward all the cattle and sheep, with 1,534 hogs.

Naval.

Dispatches from Commodore Josiah Tatnall, of the East India squadron, dated 15th of March, state that the United States ship Portsmouth, Commander A. H. Foote, sailed for the United States on the 5th. She was to go to the Kittery, Me., Station. Midshipman J. C. Moseley, transferred from the Minnesota, and Lieutenant Colville Territt and 8 seamen, invalids, are sent home by her. The Minnesota was left at Manila on the 7th, with Commissioner Reed on board, to sail for Shanghae on the 7th of March, whither Commodore Tatnall intended proceeding with the San Jacinto as soon as she could be supplied with provisions and coal. He hourly expected the Mississippi from Shanghae, via Manila, and she was to follow him to Shanghae, where, at the request of Mr. Reed, the squadron would be concentrated by the last of March. The allies were still occupying Canton.

A NEW BOOK OF TRAVEL.
NOW READY,

THE PARA PAPERS. Being an account of a tour through France, Egypt, and Ethiopia, by George Leighton Ditson, author of "Circassia, or a Tour to the Caucasus," &c., &c. 1 vol. cap 8vo. Price, in paper $1; in cloth binding, $1 25.

From the New-York Express.

His narrative is, in fact, a parti-colored web of quaint and marvelous imageries; for, aided by rare learning and unwearied research, he has gathered gems from the most obscure recesses of antiquity, and scatters them profusely along the path of his travels. Scarcely a remarkable object is described without mention of the associations that have clung about it from immemorial time: and the luxuriant, brilliant, picturesque style of the sketches, sets them off to great advantage.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

By the arrival of the Hammonia at this port yesterday, and the Indian at Quebec, we have advices from Europe to the 18th ult.—four days later. The news is not of an important character. The debate in Parliament on Mr. CARDWELL'S resolution of censure against the Government was continued during two days, and was finally adjourned to the 20th, when the vote would probably be taken. We give this morning a portion of the second day's debate, which includes an interesting speech by Mr. ROEBUCK. The indications are still that the Derby Government will be defeated. Later news from India is received. A large body of Bheels had been routed near Kotah. The rebels, it is said, were making a stand at Calpee. We learn, by this arrival, of the destruction, by fire, of the Boston ship Grand Duchess. Her passengers and crew were saved by the Phœnix, from Mobile, and were brought to Liverpool. The Grand Duchess was insured in Boston for $50,000.

Our dispatches from Washington this morning, confirm those published yesterday morning, to the effect that Lord NAPIER had forwarded instructions to the Commander of the British naval forces on the West India station, to discontinue the visitation of American vessels. It is represented that considerable uneasiness is felt at the British Embassy, lest a collision should occur between the English and American war-vessels, before the British Admiral should receive Lord NAPIER'S dispatches, which he has requested to be forwarded by special steamer from Halifax to Bermuda. Rumors were actually current in Washington, yesterday, of a collision between the Fulton and the Styx, but of course there was no foundation for them.

The Senate had the Miscellaneous Appropriation bill under discussion yesterday. A motion by Mr. SEWARD that the public lands in Kansas shall not be offered at public sale until November, 1859, was lost. Its purport being to favor actual settlers rather than speculators, 33 Senators voted against to 17 for it. A proposition to improve the St. Clair Flats was lost. There was a good deal of feeling on the subject of internal improvements, and a poor prospect that anything important would be done. The House passed the Indian Deficiency and the Three-Regiment bills. A long debate on the Fort Snelling matter occurred, in which the conduct of Secretary FLOYD was assailed with vigor, and zealously defended.

On Monday the President communicated to the Senate the documents relative to the capture of the American bark Panchita, on the Coast of Africa, by a British naval officer, who sent her to this City, on the ground that she was a Slaver. The documents are quite voluminous, and we can only find room this morning for two of the letters—one from Mr. DALLAS to the Secretary of State, and the other from Lord CLARENDON to Mr. DALLAS. It will be seen that the British Admiralty promptly disclaimed this act of aggression on the part of their officer, Captain MORESBY, and removed him from the African Station. Lord CLARENDON approved the act of censure, though at the same time advancing arguments in palliation of the offence.

Captain H. CROWELL, his officers and crew, of the ship John and Albert, of Boston, now at New-Orleans, have published a detailed and sworn statement of the particulars of the chase, firing into and boarding of that vessel on the 17th of May, within twenty-five miles of Havana. The ship had five shots fired at her in succession, and she was finally compelled to heave to in a fresh breeze with all sail standing, at the risk of losing the ship's spars. The officer who boarded the ship demanded the papers, examined the crew list, and then left. His language was not particularly civil.

Another tornado has visited Illinois, more disastrous in effect, even, than the one previously reported. The village of Ellison, about twelve miles South of Monmouth, containing about five hundred inhabitants, was entirely destroyed, every house in the place being blown down, and fifteen persons being killed, and several others fatally injured. It is believed that not one of the inhabitants escaped some personal injury. Full particulars have not yet reached us.

The United States steam frigate Wabash sailed from Quarantine at 9½ o'clock yesterday morning. She goes first to Jamaica, and will afterwards cruise for a short time in the Gulf of Mexico. Should nothing special detain her, she will then proceed to her destination in the Mediterranean.

Another battle is reported to have taken place between the Sioux and the Chippewa Indians—fifty of the former, and two hundred of the latter. The Sioux were encamped near Shakopee, Min., and were attacked by the Chippewas, who were defeated, with a loss of four killed and six dangerously wounded, while the Sioux loss was two killed and twelve wounded.

The Board of Supervisors passed a resolution yesterday giving an assistant clerk to each Police Magistrate—the salary to be $1,000 a year. They also voted to reduce the fees for registering births and deaths from 10 cents to 2 cents—a reduction which will have an important effect upon the receipts of the City Inspector's office.

The Board of Excise Commissioners were to have met yesterday, as usual, but as Mr. HASKETT only was present, there was no quorum. Mr. HASKETT stated to the reporters that he was weary of taking the public money for doing nothing, and would not appear again till the Police Commissioners had returned an answer to Mr. HOLMES' letter. He therefore adjourned the Board sine die.

The Street Commissioner sent a communication to the Board of Aldermen last evening, showing the necessity of the amendment of the ordinances in relation to the duties of the Street Department; and another showing the bad condition of the Bureau of Lamps and Gas at the date of his taking office. Both were referred, as was one from the City Inspector in relation to the removal of night-soil.

The Historical Society met last night, and heard an interesting paper by PETER FORCE, Esq., of Washington, on the question as to the suggested discovery, by Sir JOHN FRANKLIN, of a Northwest passage. Mr. FORCE argued elaborately against the possibility of such a discovery, though he admitted that FRANKLIN may have passed from the Atlantic to the Pacific on foot.

The General Markets, yesterday, were essentially unaltered for Cotton. Light receipts of the leading kinds of Breadstuffs had the effect of stiffening prices a little. The demand was good. Pork was unsettled, closing decidedly dull and lower. There was more activity in Sugars and Tobacco at full prices. No important variation transpired in other branches of trade.

The African Slave-Trade.

We extract in another column a pair of articles, one of them on the Slave-Trade and the other in reply to our observations on the Montgomery "Commercial Convention," which are certainly as racy specimens of "Southern literature" as any we have lately met with. The Charleston Mercury opens with a volley of indignation directed against Great Britain and France for their advocacy of the apprentice system, and alleges roundly that it is much the same thing as the Slave-trade, and that we should be, therefore, justified in following their example and importing negroes ourselves. That the Apprentice System is a very bad one, there is no denying; that France in adopting it, and England in winking at it, are both guilty of a virtual recurrence to "the odious traffic," is equally palpable; but the conclusion which our Southern cotemporary deduces from these premises is ridiculous. We did not abandon the Slave-trade because France and England agreed to do the same, and we shall not, therefore, now follow their example in reopening it. The Mercury's suggestion contains as flat an insult to the American people as could well be offered. It supposes that we either abolished as iniquitous a system of wrong and spoliation as ever depraved ingenuity suggested, through fear of France and England, or in servile imitation of them, and that now that their veto is withdrawn we shall return to the mire and wallow in it. We abolished the Slave-trade because it was felt to be a sin against God and a crime against humanity—because it demoralized our own people, and was a fraud upon the free laborers of our own country. For these reasons, and these only, our statute-books still brand it as a felony, and consign those who engage in it to the gallows. However England may dabble in coolies, or France in her indentured immigrants, wrong remains wrong, and piracy, piracy, and we doubt whether either the British or French Governments can change our opinions upon the nature and incidents of crime.

Having supposed that the Apprentice System is in reality Slavery, for the purpose of informing the public that France and England will now permit us to reopen the "regular" old traffic, the Mercury proceeds to deal with what it calls the "other horn of the dilemma," and raises the hypothesis that it is not Slavery, for the purpose of vindicating our right to engage in it ourselves. It says that "Nothing is more common than for agents of manufacturing mills at the North to go to Europe or to Canada, and to import into the United States hundreds of laborers apprenticed for a certain term to work in their mills." Very likely; we have no doubt that such is the case; but, unfortunately for the Mercury, the laborers from "Europe or Canada," know where they are going, enter into the agreement with a full knowledge of their rights and duties, are free agents in every respect, and moreover invariably stipulate for the payment of their wages, and if they don't find the arrangement suit them, can break it off without any thought of being cowhided. These things make all the difference in life. If the Charleston Mercury will produce us a white man in any part of Europe or America, who will agree to apprentice himself to a Southern planter on the same terms as a kidnapped negro from Loanda, we shall strike our colors and abandon the field. There is no man of any race previously free, who, with a knowledge of what was before him, would come to the Southern States or any place else, upon the same terms as the French apprentices. We denounced this system as a miserable subterfuge, when it was first commenced. We denounce it still as the worst kind of fraud and cruelty—fraud and cruelty perpetrated with the sanction of a great nation upon the weak and ignorant and helpless. We do not care two straws what France or England do in the matter.

The white men of this country have already decided that the North American Continent is not to be converted into a great Slave-barracoon for the convenience of Guinea Kings and Southern Chevaliers. The soil of the United States belongs to the white citizens of it, and any portion of its area we do not now cover, we hold in trust for those unborn multitudes of our race, for whose safety, honor and welfare it is our boast and glory that we labor. Africa will contain one hundred or one thousand times its present population, and Providence has clearly marked it out for the habitation of the negro race, and no other. He has as clearly designated this Continent as the refuge of the Caucasian race from all the errors, and follies, and abuses bequeathed to it by a corrupt and barbarous age. He has made it the theatre of the most wonderful experiments in social and political science the world has ever seen, and has showered, in rich profusion, his choicest gifts upon the millions of its people who worship him in their daily toil. If we are ever induced, either by the example of France or England, or the whinings of Southern editors, to surrender an inch more of its surface to the sustenance of herds of black savages and their drivers, we shall deserve, like the Brahmin who sacrificed to the gods a mangey hound instead of a sheep, to be smitten with disease in all our points.

We advise the Charleston Mercury, therefore, if its longings to civilize and christianize the pagan Africans are very intense, and cannot be repressed, to make all needful preparations for a trip to Timbuctoo, for we solemnly assure him that there are no more missionary operations of that sort to be carried on upon our shores. We cannot have half the Continent turned into a great camp-meeting ground. Any body who cannot refrain from teaching the arts of civilization to the Makololo or the Caffirs, must follow Dr. LIVINGSTONE'S example, and start for Central Africa. He shall have our best wishes, and we promise all pious Southerners who go upon this praiseworthy expedition to get up a subscription at the North to supply them with quinine. By the time they get through with their work, we promise them that free labor shall have effected such a transformation of this Continent that they will regret they ever went at all.

STATE POLITICS.—The principal point of discussion in the Republican ranks is whether the State Convention shall consist of one, two or three delegates from each Assembly District. The Tribune advises two, in order that the Americans, "who are sincere in their hostility to Slavery," may have a fair representation. Some Western papers recommend three, in order that the Anti-Lecompton Democrats may come in also if they choose. The Evening Post denounces all these suggestions as calculated to distract and divide the party, and goes for one delegate only—as the Convention will then be more harmonious, and more easily managed. But little is said about candidates,—the names of JAMES S. WADSWORTH, Lieutenant-Governor SELDEN, and JAMES M. COOK being the leading names, after that of Gov. KING. The Americans, in this City especially, are in favor of nominating Gov. HUNT,—upon whom they think all moderate and judicious men of both parties can unite. The Democrats say nothing—but they are supposed to keep up a terrible thinking.

The Ministerial Crisis in England.

We publish this morning a continuation of the debate in the British Parliament, on Mr. CARDWELL'S resolution of censure against the Government of the Earl of DERBY. We have devoted considerable space to this debate, because it is, in reality, the most important one that has been heard for many years within the walls of the House of Commons. Not only does the fate of the Derby Government hang upon the issue, but the landmarks of the policy to be hereafter pursued in the management of Indian affairs, will now be determined, and the happiness or misery of a hundred and fifty millions of human beings, may be said to depend upon the vote of the British Legislature. This vote, moreover, cannot be without influence upon the present unsettled condition of India herself, and more particularly upon that of the Kingdom of Oude. It must either tend to suppress or to fan the flame of rebellion; and, regarded in any light, the question is one of momentous importance to Great Britain, and of no little interest to the whole world.

Our readers need not be reminded that, in the House of Lords, the Government, on the resolution of censure similar to the one moved in the House of Commons, obtained a majority of nine. No other result in that branch of the Legislature was expected. Lord DERBY counted on its support as a foregone conclusion, and he could only have been surprised and disappointed at the smallness of his majority obtained in a very full house. It was not there, but in the House of Commons, that the great battle had to be fought; and in the latter the preponderance of the Palmerston party rendered the issue a matter of great doubt. We have been inclined, from the commencement of the present ministerial crisis, to think that the chances were against Lord DERBY, and in favor of the return of PALMERSTON to power. It must always be remembered that the merits of Lord CANNING'S Government of India do not form a part of the pending dispute. Members of Parliament may entertain what opinions they please of the wisdom and justice of his confiscation of the lands of Oude. The point now called up for determination is, whether the Home Government were right in allowing Lord ELLENBOROUGH, without waiting for any explanations from Lord CANNING, to denounce his official acts in a most sweeping, not to say insulting manner. This open rebuke, it is urged by the Opposition, is calculated to weaken the hands of the Governor-General and to encourage fresh rebellion. In addition to this, the folly of their act is rendered more patent when it appears that the Derby Administration are utterly without any fixed policy for the future government of India. They are at their wits' ends in the matter. When out of power they opposed Lord PALMERSTON'S scheme for the transfer of the Government of India to the Crown, and when in power, they were glad to adopt it, for they were unable to initiate any more feasible scheme. Like most men incapable of originating any practical plans for the future, they have been moved by a passion to destroy when they could not build up, and the erratic course pursued by Lord ELLENBOROUGH in his wholesale condemnation of Lord CANNING'S proclamation, is but a symbol of the East India policy of the Derby Government. It seems to us that, in the debates which have already taken place in the two Houses on this important subject, the Ministerial supporters have lost sight of the main question and have entered into irrelevant digressions upon side issues. ROEBUCK, for example, whose speech we print this morning, enters into a long disquisition to prove that the confiscation of the lands of Oude was one of the most heinous crimes on record. But this, we take it, is not the question which the Parliament of England is now called upon to determine. That question is simply whether the Imperial Government are wise in openly rebuking and denouncing their own officer for an act which he has not had an opportunity to explain, and at a time when one false step may plunge the country again into the midst of a rebellion of which the end cannot be foreseen.

The indications of the vote which the House of Commons will give on this question are sufficiently curious to merit a passing notice. The Conservatives will be supported by the ultra radicals, and the Opposition, which promises to be in the majority, will be made up of Palmerstonians and Peelites. The latter, though small in number, are powerful and influential, both in and out of the House, but they are unreliable and cannot be counted on by either Liberals or Conservatives. There are, however, strong symptoms that on this question, they will vote with PALMERSTON. Lord JOHN RUSSELL and his party will take the same course. If this combination be successful, and the Government find itself in a minority, it has then two courses—either to dissolve Parliament and appeal to the country, or resign altogether. Lord DERBY will probably resign, though many of his supporters will urge him to trust to a general election. We certainly do not think that his chances of success will be improved by such a course. If he fails, the mantle of office must again fall on Lord PALMERSTON, for at the present time there does not seem to be a public man so popular as he is, or so capable, even at his advanced age, of guiding the destinies of the country.

PROGRESS IN RUSSIA.—The emancipation of the serfs by the Emperor ALEXANDER is a remarkable event. We are not surprised that it has attracted so much attention here, where we are in the habit of regarding Russia as an icy despotism which no civilization has power to melt. But one or two leading facts will somewhat diminish the wonder. The serfs are not to be confounded with chattel slaves. Their condition was essentially different from Slavery in the United States. Serfdom implies an attachment to the soil. The serf could only be sold with the landed estate where he was born, where his life had been passed, and where his relatives resided. He, therefore, was secure against those violent separations from wife, children and kindred, which constitute the most cruel feature of our Slavery. Besides, his condition did not altogether preclude him from the acquisition of property. Thus, in process of time, even under Russian rule, he acquired more or less of education, of position, and of personal power. Add to this that he was of the same race and blood with his masters, and we shall cease to be surprised at his eventual emancipation. No large body of people in any country can be held in bondage after they become fitted for freedom by any near approach to the cultivation and general intellectual illumination of their masters. History affords no such example. It is a moral impossibility.

Slavery disappeared slowly from Europe. Chattelism was changed to serfdom, and the serfs could not be held in that state a moment after they felt themselves fitted for liberty and equality. Russia is behind the rest of Europe, but the process of emancipation is the same there as in Italy, Germany, France and England.

Defeat of the Homestead Bill.

Senator JOHNSON'S bill to grant a quarter-section (160 acres) of Government land, free, to every actual settler, although not so beneficent a measure as its partial originators suppose, is yet better than its opponents have been willing to admit. It is, however, beaten for this year, to be revived, and very possibly passed, hereafter. The Tribune is the chief newspaper mourner over its recent defeat in the Senate, and complains, not without reason, that its enemies have not taken the trouble to understand its bearings. If it were not presumptuous, we should venture upon the same liberty as regards our cotemporary.

The Tribune regrets the loss of the bill, not so much because it would give to the actual settler a quarter section of land without the payment of $1 25 per acre ($200) therefor, as, for the reason that it leaves the public domain open to the grasp of speculators, who afterwards sell in small parcels and at largely advanced prices. Now we think our neighbor underrates the first and overestimates the second reason. It would be a real and valuable aid to a poor man going to Minnesota or Nebraska with his family, to obtain his quarter section free. When he starts from the East he scrapes together money enough, as he believes, to defray his traveling expenses, besides leaving the necessary balance with which to enter his land. But in almost every instance he is disappointed. A thousand miles of railroads and steamboats consumes all his means, and he reaches the place of his destination with his last cent expended. He sees abundance of fine land which a little labor would make productive, but how shall he get it? That is the question.

There will be a man at hand to answer it. Every prairie village has its "bankers." One of these instructs the new-comer to select his location, and build his "claim shanty." When all is ready for a visit to the land office, his friend, the banker, accompanies him, and advances the necessary $200, at a rate of interest ranging, as may be agreed upon, from thirty to sixty per cent. By way of security, the banker takes the patent or deed in his own name, giving to the settler an article of agreement for a conveyance of the title if the $200, with the interest, shall be paid at the end of one year, or, possibly, two, in default of which the land becomes absolutely the property of the banker. In too many instances the result is, that after a year or two of toil and struggling, the unfortunate settler is compelled to abandon his improvements, and look further West. A complete title to his quarter section at the start would make him independent, as the lack of it renders him disheartened and penniless.

In regard to the monopoly practiced by speculators, there is an easy way to stop it without a Homestead Law; a way which has been tried with perfect success in Minnesota and elsewhere. When the public lands in Minnesota were first brought into market speculators eagerly bought up, at the auction sales, most of the land lying within fifteen miles of the Mississippi River. But in compliance with a petition from the settlers, Government closed the public sales and issued instructions that the land-offices should remain open to preemptors only. So they have continued to this day; and the fine lands stretching from the vicinity of the Mississippi to the St. Peter's River, than which the great West contains none more desirable, have been entered by actual settlement and preemption. If this policy were pursued in respect to all public lands whose chief value is their adaptation to agriculture, the speculator nuisance would be abated most effectually. Yet, at the same time, a quarter-section without money or price would be a great benefit to the poor industrious settler. There are, indeed, thousands clamoring for "free homes," who could not possibly be induced to accept them, with the hard labor and privation involved. But, on the other hand, many thousands of hard-working farmers and mechanics in the Eastern States would gladly welcome such homesteads as a boon, and set themselves at once to making them into comfortable abodes for themselves and their children.

WHAT HAS HE DONE WITH IT?—Nothing so piquantly exercises the general mind as a problem which nobody can solve. An inquiry in relation to the explosive properties of saltpetre will amuse the public for months, and even an attempt to identify the mysterious individual who smote Mr. W. Patterson, for a much longer period. At present the curiosity of the people takes a direction toward Mr. WOLCOTT, of Boston. Everybody wishes to know what he has done with a certain balance of $74,000 placed in his hands by the house of LAWRENCE, STONE & Co., wherewithal to smooth the free wool tariff through Congress. Mr. W. received $87,000 in all, and accounts for $13,000. It is in regard to the remainder that information is wanted.

Now Mr. WOLCOT could tell if he pleased. If he should choose to reply he must, almost necessarily, give one of two answers. He must say that he paid the $74,000, corruptly, to members of Congress, or that he put it in his own personal pocket. It would be somewhat awkward in Mr. W. to do either. Especially is he bound in honor—the kind of honor which such transactions admit of—to avoid exposing public men whom he may have bribed. If the money went in that way, Mr. W. will remain inexorably silent. We shall have no word from him. Congress passed his bill, and allowed him to get out of jail. Can he do less than keep counsel? To suppose otherwise would be derogatory to Mr. W.'s principles. On the other hand, if he pocketed the money, he will tell when sufficiently badgered. The code of business morals is not severe enough among us to hang him for an action so profitable to himself. Indeed, it is but too likely that he would meet with more of envy than of censure.

In the meantime the public and the Press are indebted to his reticence for a deal of exciting discussion. We doubt whether it is really wished that he should tell. If he has kept the money, nobody cares, and if it was divided among Congressmen, perhaps it is safer for the feelings and honor of all concerned that no disclosure should be made. When a stone is cast upward it is not always easy to foresee whose head it will strike in its descent.

THE PEOPLE'S PARTY.—New parties spring up like mushrooms now-a-days. Every new grievance is made the occasion for a new party. The latest programme is that of "The People's Party," issued at Washington. The Declaration is very well written and the principles very good; but nobody signs it and nobody seems to be responsible for it. It is entitled to just about as much weight as a sensible anonymous communication in a newspaper. If sixty or seventy members of Congress will cut loose from the old parties and issue this document as the programme of their new organization, it will probably receive attention. At present it amounts to nothing.

TO BUSINESS MEN.—Several prominent and distinguished gentlemen, highly intelligent and accomplished, are willing to take houses in Washington during the next session of Congress, and explain to hungry members the wants of the country,—provided the parties to whose benefit this will inure will pay the expenses of such a proceeding. Application must be made soon, as the purchase of furniture, selection of champaigne, &c., &c., requires considerable time. The attention of Steamboat-men, Iron, Wool and Cotton Manufacturers, and Railroad Presidents, is particularly requested. Address General WEBB, near Wall-street.

Amusements.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—VERDI'S Opera of the "Traviata" will be produced to-night, with GAZZANIGA, BRIGNOLI and AMODIO in their original parts.

NIBLO'S GARDEN.—Mr. C. W. CLARKE, an actor who has been long before the public, and who in almost every walk of the drama has performed his duties faithfully, has recently met with a severe misfortune—so severe that it may incapacitate him from further exertion. While performing he was so unfortunate as to burst a blood-vessel, the effects of which still deny him the benefit of the active pursuit of his profession. In this crisis his fellow-artists, with their proverbial generosity, have come to his assistance, and to-day and to-night a grand Testimonial Jubilee takes place at Niblo's Garden. The programme will be found elsewhere, and it will be seen that nearly all the eminent artists of America are included in the performance. We trust that our readers will lend a helping hand to a man stricken with adversity in the midst of a young and prosperous career.

LAURA KEENE'S THEATRE.—Mr. HACKETT is unquestionably the best Falstaff on the stage, and we are glad to notice that the public is alive to the fact. Miss KEENE'S Theatre was handsomely filled last night to witness the second performance of Shakspeare's "Merry Wives of Windsor." The comedy was fairly given—Mr. HACKETT, in particular, being admirable. It will bear repetition. A good company assist Mr. HACKETT.

DODWORTH'S SALOON.—A new Cantata, called "The Forest Melody, with a prelude, the Song of the Stars," will be produced here to-night, for the first time in this City. The words are by WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT; the music by GEORGE HENRY CURTIS. It is composed for baritone, soprano, mezzo-soprano and contralto voices, with an accompaniment for piano. Miss BRAINERD, Miss ADA ROBJOHN, Miss HAWLEY, Miss WESTERVELT, Miss FANNY STOCKTON, Miss FANNY ROBJOHN, Dr. GUILMETTE, and the composer, Mr. CURTIS, will assist.

City Items.

TICKET-SWINDLING.—A French Canadian named BRUGEMI, complained that he had been swindled out of $140 in gold and a valuable watch chain, at J. W. RAYMOND'S office, No. 177 West-street, for which he received only a steerage ticket. He had been purposely misled by the swindlers, who made him believe that the place where he was cheated of his money was in the regular office of the steamer. An officer was sent to inquire into the case.

During the large Spring emigration several countrymen, who found on the steamer-day that they could dispose of their tickets at an advance, sold them, and remained over. This one person did for three steamers. Others also went into the business of speculating upon the necessities of their own neighbors, and showed as much aptness at the business as the most experienced trickster. Those who had not the courage to invest on their own account, hired themselves to the professional swindlers at five dollars a head to procure tickets for fictitious passengers, which were sold at large profits to those who were too late to secure tickets in season. These things are still practiced, which makes it doubly difficult for the agent to protect honest travelers against imposition.

HOUSE-RENT vs. LONGBOTTOM.—There was a case of some interest in the Marine Court, yesterday, brought by Mr. LONGBOTTOM, against a gentleman for $145 for rent. The defendant answered by an offset of services in Albany, during the session of the Legislature, by which, as he claimed, the plaintiff succeeded in procuring the passage of an act changing his name from LONGBOTTOM to HOWARD. It was claimed that the change was of great value to the plaintiff, inasmuch as before that his female friends were put to the blush whenever they were forced to pronounce his name in company.

THE NEW TOMPKINS MARKET.—Work was resumed yesterday upon the new Tompkins Market building, corner of Bowery and Sixth-street. The foundation was laid several months ago, and since then the matter has lain dormant until the present time, awaiting an additional appropriation by the Common Council. It is believed now that the work will go on without further interruption, until the building is completed, which, it is stated, will take about six months. Meantime, people living in the vicinity must be content to do their marketing in the tumble-down sheds temporarily erected around the triangular park opposite the site of the new structure.

The Crystal Palace, which was closed by the City authorities when they took possession of it Monday, was reopened yesterday morning, and visitors were admitted there on paying the admission fee which was charged before the City authorities took possession of it. The same persons who were employed there before are still in charge of the Palace, and everything there looks the same as it did the day before yesterday. Mr. DYCKMAN, of the Comptroller's office, is engaged in taking an inventory of the articles on exhibition in the Palace. The inventory will not probably be completed for a week. The money received from visitors will be appropriated to the expenses of the exhibition, which will not be closed until the City authorities so direct.

At the Mayor's Office yesterday JAS. MULLIN, an auctioneer, was fined $3 for doing business without a license. Officer BLACK recovered $20 for a defrauded countryman at the bogus ticket office, corner of Liberty and Greenwich streets, and $24 for a countryman at WILSON'S office, in West street. Officer BRANDT recovered $85 from FRANK FOULER, corner of Chambers and West streets; the money had been fraudulently obtained from SIMONS GUNKENBERGER, a German from Cincinnati. GEO. BAKER, policy dealer of No. 55 Sheriff-street, was arrested by officer MCCLOUD, taken before the Mayor, and held to bail in the sum of $500.

The Regatta of the New-York Yacht Club takes place to-day at 11 o'clock. The usual arrangements have been made to pass flag-boats stationed off Staten Island, and to sail round the Southwest spit, returning to the Club House, Hoboken. There will be eleven competitors of the first class, three of which are new, viz.: The Gipsy, Zinga and THOMAS COLLYERS' sloop. In the second class are the Una, MALLORY'S new sloop, the Scud, from Philadelphia, the Irene, and several others. There are six entries in the third class.

Mayor TIEMANN has issued his proclamation and caused to be placarded in the Mayor's Office and elsewhere, declaring that on and after Monday, June 6 fifty cents will be paid for every dog brought alive to the pound, corner of First-avenue and Thirty-first-street. No dogs will be received from boys.

The Heads of Departments met in the Mayor's Office at 4 P. M. yesterday. Nothing of interest transpired. The Mayor informed our reporter that at the meeting a subject was under consideration which it was not desirable to make public at present, but which he trusted would be for the public good.

☞ To Book Collectors, a fine opportunity is offered for adding to their treasures by the extensive Book sale announced by GEO. A. LEAVITT & Co, to commence, this day, at 4 P. M., and following days. The collection is said to be one of rare value and interest.

Captain WALLING yesterday took the command of the Mayor's Police Squad and of the Detective Squad.

The Ocean Mail Service Bill---Serious Leaks Discovered.

Proposed Revision of the Entire Postal System.

Amendments to the Omnibus Appropriation Bill.

Passage of the Three-Regiment Bill in the House

The New Steam Sloops-of-War—The Pennsylvania Bank Case—A Rumpus in the Willett's Point Committee—The News from Arizona—Report in the Case of the Bark Adriatic, &c.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, June 1.

The bill making appropriations for the Ocean Mail and other Postal services, which passed the House without twenty members knowing its details has been subjected to scrutiny in the Senate Committee, which reveals very objectionable features. The second section appropriates $84,000 for mail service rendered, when, in fact, no service has been performed for which payment can be required, and in the specific cases designated by this appropriation the Collins Line failed to perform the service, and the British steamers took the mails for the postages. The third section appropriates $120,000 for contingencies in the service between New-York and Europe, when there can be no contingencies, the service being performed under specific contract. Thus an aggregate of over $200,000 is appropriated, nominally for mail service which would really be left for outside employment. Attention being called to the subject, this great leak can and will be prevented. An amendment will probably be reported from the Senate Committee providing for the departure of the mail steamers between New-York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Norfolk, Charleston, Savannah and New-Orleans, four times a month, on alternate weeks from each port, for Southampton, thence in auxiliary steamers to Havre and Antwerp, and a weekly trip in return, arriving at said ports on alternate weeks. A contract is to be made by the Postmaster-General for this service, to be performed by six iron screw-steamships of the best class for speed and safety—two being in reserve for contingencies.

It is the intention of J. GLANCY JONES, in accordance with the views of the Administration, early next session to propose a revision of the whole Postal system, foreign and domestic, in order to bring the service, which now costs the Government some five millions per annum, within the receipts of the Department, and make it self-supporting. A knowledge of this purpose has, doubtless, influenced ENGLISH in opposing action relative to the Ocean Mail Service this session.

In view of this object, and another of equal importance, Mr. JONES this morning brought forward a resolution that Congress should reassemble on the second Monday in November, which he intends to press. In the meantime the course of trade will be watched, and unless a great revival takes place, Mr. JONES will early in the session move for a complete revision of the Tariff.

The Omnibus Appropriation bill is getting heavily loaded down with amendments in the Senate. The attempt to hitch on the River and Harbor Appropriation bill may be repeated in the House by Mr. HATCH, of Buffalo, who made a strong speech in Committee of the Whole assailing the Administration policy of retrenchment in this quarter, and pronouncing it false in economy as in party policy.

The Steam Sloop-of-war bill will probably be hitched on to the Naval bill in the Senate. If not, it will be again brought forward in the House.

Mr. FLORENCE has ready the report of the Select Committee in the Pennsylvania Bank case. Only five witnesses were examined. Nothing was proved, except that Postmaster MILLER received, as charged, $23,000 as a gratuity for services in effecting the sale of the property to the Government. The Committee ask to be discharged.

A great rumpus was kicked up in the Willett's Point Committee by HASKIN having sent to CLAY, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Commerce, at CLAY'S request, a partial report of the evidence taken, involving Collector SCHELL and his friends in that transaction, with an accompanying statement by HASKIN as Chairman, without the knowledge or concurrence of any other member of the Committee. The matter being brought up against SCHELL in the Senate, he ferreted out the circumstances, and brought them to the notice of his friends on the Willett's Point Committee, who had a stormy meeting this morning, disavowed HASKIN'S action, and withdrew his communication to the Senate. HASKIN'S report was read this morning, but was unanimously dissented from by the rest of the Committee. They will meet again to-morrow, when the other reports will be submitted, and, possibly, a report be made to the House, but not probably. Part of the evidence only is privately printed. The whole will make over four hundred pages.

Since the Senate have evening sessions, Vice-President BRECKINRIDGE has ordered the private drinking-room of the Senate to be closed. O.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, June 1.

Letters from Arizona to Lieut. MOWRY, Delegate from that Territory, state that it is probable that PESCHIERA, Governor of Sonora, will declare that State independent in the event of the success of the Zuloaga Government or SANTA ANNA'S return to Mexico. The news confirms previous statements regarding the correspondence between PESCHIERA and parties in the United States. Arizona continues much disturbed by Indian depredations, murders and robberies, and there being no Courts of law the violence remained unchecked. The intelligence from the silver mines is highly encouraging, fresh discoveries having been made. Tueson was nearly deserted by the people going to the new placer gold diggings at Canada del Ora, forty miles distant. Emigration from California was on the increase, and a press was about being brought from San Francisco for the establishment of a newspaper at Tueson. The people were anxiously waiting and expected a Territorial Government.

The Secretary of War has indicated his intention of sending troops to Arizona as soon as he has any at his disposal.

Mr. BURLINGAME'S report, unanimously concurred in by the Committee on Foreign Affairs, is accompanied by a resolution requesting the President to obtain redress on account of the conduct of the French Government relative to the American bark Adriatic. The report also recommends a revision of the laws in reference to collisions at sea, and an arrangement by which the damages may be determined in such cases.

XXXVth CONGRESS.......First Session.

SENATE....WASHINGTON, Tuesday, June 1.

Numerous uninteresting memorials and reports were presented.

The Miscellaneous Appropriation bill was then taken up.

Mr. MASON, from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, reported a bill authorizing the Executive to employ force to protect the rights of our citizens from outrages by foreign nations, having especial reference to Central and South America.

This is the bill recently introduced by Mr. DOUGLAS, slightly altered.

Messrs. MASON, GWIN and HOUSTON argued the importance of immediate action, so as to obtain the concurrence of the House ere the adjournment.

Mr. SEWARD expressed strong disapprobation of the measure. He was unwilling to involve the country in a war with all the nations of America, south of our own.

Mr. SLIDELL introduced an amendment, authorizing the President in certain cases to suspend the neutrality laws.

An attempt to make the bill the special order for to-morrow was voted down by 27 majority.

The Miscellaneous Civil Appropriation Bill was further discussed.

Mr. Seward, of New-York, moved an amendment that the public lands in Kansas shall not be offered at public sale until the expiration of one year from the first of November next, which was lost by the following vote:

Yeas—Messrs. Broderick, Cameron, Chandler, Dixon, Durkee, Fessenden, Foster, Hamlin, Harlan, Kennedy, Rice, Seward, Simmons, Stuart, Trumbull, Wade, Wilson—17.

Nays—Messrs. Allen, Benjamin, Bigler, Bright, Brown, Clay, Clingman, Crittenden, Davis, Fitch, Fitzpatrick, Green, Gwin, Hammond, Hayne, Houston, Hunter, Iverson, Johnson of Ark., Johnson of Tenn., Jones, Mallory, Mason, Pearce, Polk, Pugh, Reid, Sebastian, Slidell, Thompson, of N. J., Toombs, Wright, Yulee—33.

The bill was debated at great length by the friends of internal improvements, the Northwestern Senators especially introducing amendment after amendment for appropriations to lake and river harbors, but no action was taken on them up to the recess at 4 o'clock.

At 6 o'clock the debate was resumed.

Mr. Seward made a powerful appeal for the Western interests.

The question being on Mr. Chandler's proposition to provide $54,000 for the improvement of the St. Clair Flats, it was lost by a tie vote of 20 to 20, whereupon Mr. Pugh moved an amendment which was virtually to engraft the whole river and harbor bill as an additional section to this bill, and asking appropriations for the harbors of Chicago, Milwaukee, Sheboygan, St. Joseph, Munro, St. Clair Flats, Cleveland, Huron, Grand River, Ashtabula, Lunenburg, Buffalo, Genesee, Sodus Bay, Oswego, Burlington and a few others, amounting to over $450,000; also, $110,000 for a Red River raft.

Mr. Jones moved an additional $50,000 for the Des Moine, and Rock River Rapids, which was lost, by 30 against 17.

Mr. Pugh's amendment was then voted on and rejected, by 26 against 23.

Mr. Pugh next moved to strike out all the appropriations for life-boats and life-saving stations on the Atlantic coast, with the view, he said, of ascertaining whether the Northwestern States are to have justice or whether they were mere conquered provinces.

Mr. Seward declared he could not support any such proposal, and the Senate voted it down by 31 against 17.

Mr. Polk moved to reduce the appropriation for the Coast Survey from two hundred and fifty thousand dollars to one hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

Messrs. Fessenden, Hunter, Pearce, Seward, Hayne and Mallory earnestly defended the necessity of the coast survey, and the able manner in which it has been accomplished, while Mr. Trumbull opposed it with all his might, but vainly, for the amendment was lost by 26 against 11.

Mr. Wilson moved to suppress disbursing agents and transfer their duties to collectors, which was agreed to, the collectors to be allowed one quarter per cent. commission.

Mr. Johnson, of Tennessee, moved to strike out the million appropriation for the Washington aqueduct, and Mr. Pugh to reduce the appropriation to $400,000. Both proposals were lost, and the Senate adjourned.

Persistent efforts are being made, with the double intent of defeating the bill or prolonging the session, or both. Other amendments, it is understood, will be offered to-morrow.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Washington, Tuesday, June 1.

The Speaker announced as the Special Committee on the memorial of American Artists, Mr. Marshall, of Kentucky; Mr. Keitt, of South Carolina; Mr. Taylor, of New York; Mr. Morris, of Pennsylvania; and Mr. Pendleton, of Ohio.

The House then passed the Indian Deficiency bill and the Three-Regiment Volunteer appropriation bill—the latter by 101, against 66.

The House concurred in the report of the Conference Committee on the disagreement of both Houses to the amendments to the Executive, Judicial and Legislative bill.

Mr. J. Glancy Jones, of Pennsylvania, asked leave to introduce a joint resolution, providing that the next session of Congress commence on the second Monday of November, but objections were made.

The House then proceeded to the consideration of the Fort Snelling report.

Mr. Morrill, of Vermont, spoke of the great wrong done in the sale of the Reservation. A frank and honorable man, placed in the position of the Secretary of War, when he found that he made a blunder and a mistake, in the appointment of Agents or Superintendents, would frankly have admitted the fact, and corrected it; but instead of that, there was not only a remarkable, persistent and studied effort to justify, but an attempt to persuade us that he was right in relation to the deliberate concealment of the preliminaries preceding the sale. No corpse in the catacombs was more closely locked up than this transaction. No one could worm out of the Secretary what was going on. He (Morrill) reviewed the testimony condemning the New-York and Virginia combination, arguing that the property was sold for less than its value, and insisting that the House should place its seal of disapprobation on the whole manner in which the sale was effected.

Mr. Faulkner, of Virginia, expressed his condemnation of the tone, temper, and spirit of the report of the majority of the Committee, the ability of which was displayed in presenting this transaction to the country in a light wholly different from what the testimony warranted. As a report, he had no hesitation in saying it was more characterized by partisan feelings than any document heretofore made to Congress. The speech of the gentleman from Vermont, (Morrill,) was marked by the same partisan spirit. The document was loose and inaccurate in its statements and evidence. The Committee omitted to do justice to the Secretary of War in the only virtual and material point. They were required to ascertain whether there was any corruption in the high places of the Government, and if so, to bring the offender to punishment. There was not a word or a syllable in the testimony injuriously affecting the official character and purity of the Secretary of War, and this fact should have been cheerfully announced to the House. He showed that Fort Snelling reservation was useless for military purposes to the Government. The Legislative Assembly and Constitutional Convention of Minnesota petitioned the Government to sell it. The land commanded a higher price than any since the commencement of the Government, except a little spot within the corporate limits of Chicago.

Mr. Morris, of Illinois, understood that the Willett's Point Committee will report to-morrow; and, as that subject and this were somewhat connected, he thought they should be considered together. The same parties who purchased Fort Snelling, a few days before, sold the Government Willett's Point.

Mr. Florence, of Pennsylvania, said Mr. Morris knew more than he did, if the Committee was to report to-morrow.

Mr. Morris replied he was so informed by the Chairman of the Committee.

Mr. Dawes, of Massachusetts, having read the reports and evidence had come to the conclusion to support the condemnatory resolutions of the majority of the Committee. The sale of Fort Snelling for the price to certain persons, and at the time, was the consummation of a scheme laid in the past Administration and carried out in the present, under the eyes of the Secretary of War, in such a manner that blindness to it was a grievous official fraud. He did not care what the property brought. The House had to do with the secret sale, and with the special favorites who take rich slices of the public domain to their hearts' content, at any price.

Mr. Bishop (Conn.) said the movement was set on foot for the purpose of gratifying the spirit of political dishonesty, which seeks to establish its own purity and perfection by heaping disgrace on those entitled to confidence and respect. The whole report of the Committee, from the beginning to the end, in its statements, arguments, assumptions, and conclusions, bears unmistakable evidence of a deep-laid party scheme against one of the chief officers of the Government, whom he believed as honest a man as was ever honored with the position of Secretary of War. He contended that Secretary Floyd's course was in accordance with law, and therefore not void, as the Committee assert. The Secretary was bound to dispose of Fort Snelling, it being no longer necessary for military purposes.

Mr. Grow, of Pennsylvania, said the Secretary had no authority to sell any military reservation, unless he had properly ascertained it to be useless for defensive purpose; otherwise he was subject to impeachment. He had violated the law of Congress and trampled down the rights of citizens under the sanction of the President.

Mr. Phelps, of Missouri, replied, saying, the law gives the Secretary the authority to dispose of Military reservations by private or public sale, for it sometimes occurs, that better prices can be obtained by the former, than the latter mode; as the case in point showed, a portion of the Fort Snelling property previously sold at public sale for $1 25 an acre. With this example, it was wise policy in the Secretary to pursue the course for which he is now arraigned.

Mr. Cavanaugh defended the sale of Fort Snelling, which the Republicans made use of as a catspaw to pluck their political chestnuts out of the ashes.

Mr. Stanton (Ohio) would not say the Secretary was guilty of an overt act, but that he was surrounded by such associations as throw suspicion over the transaction, and makes it look as if there was a fraudulent combination between the agent of the Government and the purchasers of the reservation.

Mr. Burnett, (Ky.,) said when the Republicans charged fraud, they ought to remember that history shows that all the fraud and corruption of public men was formed on that side. He then defended the Secretary.

Mr. Bingham, of Ohio, said there were no characteristics of a bona fide sale, but there were those of fraud and stealing.

Mr. Letcher, of Virginia, defended Dr. Graham, one of his constituents, from gross imputations on his honesty and integrity. In his testimony he said there was not a particle of evidence to show collusion between him and the Secretary.

Mr. Marshall of Kentucky, regarded it as unfortunate that where so much was at stake there should have been exhibited anything like party feeling. Belonging to neither the Democratic or Republican Party, he could not be accused of partisan bias.

He then defended the Secretary, saying he acted honestly though improvidently; he, (Marshall,) however, saw nothing in this to justify him in impeaching the integrity of the Secretary.

Mr. Hughes, of Indiana, took the ground that the charge originated with the Republicans for political purposes.

The debate was further continued, when the House adjourned.

During the day Mr. Harris, of Illinois, from the Committee on Elections, reported in favor of declaring the seat of Mr. Harris, of Maryland, vacant, on the ground of fraud and violence in his election.

THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

The Street Commissioner Proposes a Reorganization of his Department—Condition of the Bureau of Lamps and Gas.

The Board of Aldermen met last evening—President Clancy in the Chair.

A resolution was laid over, directing the Croton Aqueduct Department to remove any and all rail tracks in Fiftieth-street, west of Eighth-avenue, forthwith—the said tracks or rails being unauthorized by the Common Council, and obstructing the carriage-way in Fiftieth-street.

A resolution was laid over, requesting the owners of the ferry known as the Harlem Steam Navigation Company, to run their boats on Sunday.

The resolution from the Councilmen in favor of donating $1,500 to the New-York Infirmary for Indigent Women and Children, was referred to the Committee on Finance.

The resolution from the Councilmen, in relation to the removal of the remains of President Monroe was concurred in.

The resolution from the Councilmen, calling upon the Comptroller to resign his official position, was laid on the table in accordance with the rule.

The following was received from the Street Commissioner, and referred:

CONDITION OF THE BUREAU OF LAMPS AND GAS.

Street Department, No. 4 Hall of Records,
New-York, May 31, 1858.

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of New-York:

Gentlemen: I would beg leave to submit for your consideration the accompanying report of the Superintendent of Lamps and Gas, relative to the condition of that Bureau at the date the duties thereof were assumed by the present incumbent. I am informed, by Mr. Gayte, that the whole number of gas lamp posts contracted for, in pursuance of a resolution awarding the same, adopted by your honorable body, and approved by the Mayor, April 30, 1857, have been delivered to the various gas companies in the City, and that there are none on hand at the Corporation yard.

By reference to document No. 19 of Board of Councilmen of 1857, it will be seen that an appropriation was made, and the tax levy of 1858 based thereon, for 1,000 lamp-posts, lanterns and frames, for the Harlem Gas-light Company, in addition to 1,000 lamp-posts to be furnished for the use of the other gas companies of the City, most of which Mr. Gayte is of the opinion will be called for during the ensuing year.

On examination of the contract for lighting the oil lamps of the City, I find that the same was entered into on Feb. 28, 1854, and was to continue one year from March 8, 1854.

This contract was made with Smith D. Bellows, who was, by the terms thereof, "to light, trim and keep clean all the lamps, and furnish the necessary oil for the use of the Fire Department, markets, prisons, station-houses, and all other public places lighted with oil," for the sum of $52,000, and accordingly expired on March 8, 1155. I am informed, however, that the oil lamps have been lighted and kept in order by Mr. Bellows until the present time, and that he has been paid therefor at the rate specified in his original contract.

It has been represented to me that the number of oil lamps in the City has largely decreased during the past four years—gas lamps having been established in their stead—and that the service can be fully performed for an amount less than one-half of the sum heretofore paid.

In view of these facts, I would indorse the recommendation of Mr. Gayte, in relation to the contracts requisite for the proper and efficient discharge of the functions of his bureau, and would suggest that such measures, as may be useful in the premises, be adopted by your honorable body, authorizing the Street Commissioner to advertise the necessary proposals for the following supplies, to be furnished for the use of the Corporation of the City of New-York:

Proposals for fifteen hundred gas-lamp posts.

Proposals for fifteen hundred gas-lamp frames, the contractor to drill cross-heads to the same.

Proposals for twenty-five hundred lanterns.

Proposals for repairing and enlarging all the public lamps in the City.

Proposals for painting the new lamp-posts.

Proposals for the carting for the Bureau of Lamps and Gas for one year.

Proposals for lighting and furnishing the oil for all the lamps in the City, and keeping them in repair for one year; specifications to state that all bids must be for a certain specific sum for each lamp lighted during the year, and that, should the lighting of any lamp be discontinued, the contractor shall receive only a pro rata compensation for the time such lamps have been lighted.

I would also call your attention to the fact that the contract for lighting the lower part of the City, below Grand-street, with gas, expired on May 12, 1853. The New-York Gas Company have, however, continued to light this portion of the City, up to the present time, under the terms of their previous contract, in pursuance of various agreements made with the Commissioners of Streets and Lamps.

The amended Charter of 1857, and the ordinances of the Common Council, require that all supplies for the use of the City must be furnished by contract, which provisions will preclude me from authorizing any payments to be made for lighting this portion of the City until proposals be issued, and a contract be made therefor.

I would, therefore, respectfully call your attention to this important matter, and request that it be taken into consideration, in addition to the other subject-matter herein set forth.

Respectfully submitted,
EDWARD COOPER, Street Commissioner.

The following is the report referred to in the above:

Street Department, Bureau of Lamps and Gas.
New York, Saturday, May 22, 1858.

Edward Cooper, Street Commissioner,

Sir:—In accordance with your direction to report to you in writing the condition in which I found the office and the books, papers, accounts and business of this bureau generally, I will state that I found the office in a very unfurnished condition, many articles having apparently been removed. There were five books in the office when I took possession, none of which had ever been used, and the old ones that I have been able to obtain, were handed to me by Mr. Joseph E. Ebling and Mr. John Lynnes, and consist of a complaint book, ledger, and journal, which came down to January 1st, 1856, also order and resolution books which came down to June 1857, all of which I have had thoroughly examined. The only unexpired contracts that I have discovered are one with Johnson, Cameron & Franklin for 3,000 iron gas frames, and drill cross heads for the same, and 1,000 oil lamp irons—a copy of which I have heretofore furnished you with. Also a contract with the Manhattan Gas Light Company, which has ten years to run. I find that there are a large number of old oil lamp posts still up, the lighting of which has been displaced by gas, and it is requisite that some arrangement should be made to have them removed forthwith and taken to the Public Yard, as in several places, caused by grading and filling in, many of them have been buried up to the irons.

The following contracts are immediately requisite for the proper discharge of the duties of this Bureau for painting new lamp posts. In regard to this there at the present time about 820 posts in the Harlem and 700 in the Manhattan Company's districts, many of which have been up a long time, and should be painted as soon as possible, as the rust is very thick upon them:

For furnishing 1,500 new gas-lamp posts; of these about 1,000 will be required for the Harlem District and the balance for those of the Manhattan and New-York Companies.

For 2,500 new gas lamps, to be furnished complete.

For 1,500 iron gas-lamp frames, and to drill cross-heads for the same.

For repairing and reglazing all the public lamps in the City.

For furnishing the oil and lighting all the oil lamps in the City for the term of one year. This is an important matter, as you will see by copy of L. D. Bellows' expired contract that he has been receiving $52,700 per year. That contract also specified that he should light the markets and City Hall, and furnish the Engine, Hose and Hook and Ladder Companies with oil, each Company I understand, being allowed about one gallon per month. I think that oil lamps should be lighted at so much per lamp, and in that case Fire companies might procure their oil from the Bureau of the Fire Department or Repairs and Supplies, and arrangements can be made for lighting the City Hall and Markets.

For the carting for the Bureau of Lamps and Gas for one year.

It is required that a place should be secured for the proper storage of all materials belonging to this Bureau, relative to which, I would state that there is a yard at the foot of One Hundred and Twenty-first-street, East River, now occupied by this Department, which was hired by Mr. Ebling from year to year, at the rent of $200 per annum, no lease having been made therefor.

You are no doubt aware that the contract with the New-York Gas Light Company has not been renewed.

Respectfully submitted,
WM. GAYTE,
Superintendent of Lamps and Gas.

After the disposal of the above, the following was read and referred:

PROPOSED REORGANIZATION OF THE STREET DEPARTMENT.

Street Department, June 1, 1858.

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of New-York:

I desire to call the attention of the Common Council to the necessity of sundry amendments to the ordinances relating to the duties assigned to the Street Department. It is most desirable that a thorough revision of these ordinances be made. The ordinances defining the duties and the powers of this Department, adopted as they have been at different periods from 1845 to the present time, and under the provisions of laws and charters subsequently repealed, are, in many cases, not in conformity with existing laws; and in others indefinite, unintelligible and contradictory. The ordinance reorganizing the Street Department, adopted in June, 1857, is especially defective, and a new ordinance should be substituted therefor, granting powers sufficient to enable the duties of the Department to be efficiently discharged, and, at the same time, prescribing definitely their extent and the manner in which they shall be exercised.

I find the action of this Department much embarrassed by the fact that no authority is granted in the Ordinances for the appointment of many of the officers necessarily required to enable the duties assigned to several of its bureaus to be discharged in an efficient and satisfactory manner. It is true that former incumbents have assumed to possess and to exercise the power of appointing necessary officers, for whose employment no specific provision is made in the Ordinances; but I hold such appointments to be illegal, and have therefore, in all such cases, removed the incumbents, and shall make no appointments in their places, until definite authority therefor be granted by Ordinance.

Thus, in the Bureau of Repairs and Supplies, the Superintendent of Repairs and Supplies is charged by the Ordinance with the duties of superintending the construction and repair of public buildings, and "inspecting all work done by contract or otherwise" thereon; making all estimates necessary for the construction of public buildings; keeping correct accounts of time on work, and the expenses thereof, when not done by contract, and of examining and auditing all accounts connected with the business of his bureau. To enable him to perform these duties, two clerks are allowed by the Ordinances, but no foreman or inspectors are provided for. When it is considered that the construction, repair and inspection, from time to time, of all the Engine-houses, Police-stations, Court-rooms, and all other public buildings, are under the charge of this officer, the obvious impossibility of his attending to all these duties in person must be apparent. The custom has, heretofore, been in a great degree to leave to the mechanic by whom the work was done the determination of the value of his services. This custom is fraught with mischief. The Superintendent of Repairs and Supplies should be enabled to determine such value for himself, with at least a reasonable approach to accuracy. I am satisfied, therefore, that the interests of the City will be promoted by the appointment of an assistant to the Superintendent of Repairs and Supplies, who shall be competent to make the estimates of the cost of work to be done, and to exercise, under the direction of the Superintendent, a supervision of the same. I would also recommend that authority be granted for the appointment of two practical mechanics as inspectors of work not done under contract. With this assistance, in my opinion, the Superintendent of Repairs and Supplies will be enabled to determine for himself the value of the services rendered in many small repairs which cannot be given out by contract, instead of being compelled, as he must necessarily be in the absence of such aid, to allow in a great degree the value of such repairs to be estimated by the person by whom it is performed.

In respect of the Bureau of Wharves and Piers the same remarks are applicable. The head of the Bureau is charged with the duty of exercising a constant inspection and supervision of the condition of the public wharves and piers, and of the erection and repairing of the same; and of suggesting and reporting improvements and alterations thereon. No clerk or assistance of any kind is provided for him by the ordinance. Many of the wharves and piers are at present in a dilapidated condition and in need of repairs. I recommend that authority be given for the employment of a clerk in this Bureau, and also a foreman who shall have, under the immediate direction of the head of his Bureau, general charge of the work required to be done in repairing wharves and piers otherwise than by contract.

In the Bureau of Lands and Places I find no provision authorizing the appointment of keepers for the various parks, although persons in that capacity have always been employed. Being in the nature of permanent officers, they cannot, in my judgment, be legally appointed without an ordinance creating the offices. I would recommend that authority be granted for the appointment of keepers, as has heretofore been done, for each of the principal parks, and that the Street Commissioner be authorized from time to time to employ such additional labor as may be necessary to keep such parks and places in proper order.

It is made the duty of the Superintendent of Lamps and Gas to take charge of, oversee and superintend, the construction, repairing, cleaning, trimming and lighting the public lamps; of inspecting and repairing the same; of reporting all violations of contracts for lighting the City with oil or gas, and reporting every omission or neglect to clean, trim and light the same. It is also made his duty to subject all oil to a thorough examination and inspection, and to cause all lamps hereafter placed in the streets and avenues to be in conformity with the ordinances or resolutions of the Common Council. He must likewise examine, audit and certify all accounts connected with his bureau. Here, also, as in other bureaus, I find officers have been employed without any ordinance authorizing their appointment. Some of these officers I deem to be unnecessary. I recommend that authority be given to me to appoint one Inspector of Oil and eight Inspectors of Lamps.

By the charter, it is provided that the necessity of each expenditure shall be certified to by the head of the appropriate Department, and also that "the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department shall have a bureau under the Street Department," and shall have charge of repairing fire engines and fire apparatus. It has been customary, heretofore, to have an officer in this Department, known as Inspector of fire engines; but I can find no authority for the appointment of this officer, and have therefore removed the present incumbent and declined to make a reappointment to this office. I deem the services of such a person indispensable to the proper reputation of this bureau. I am unwilling to certify to the necessity of expenditures, or to order the same upon the report of an officer over whom I have no direct control, and whose opinions, and my own, as to what are the necessary expenditures for the Department, are essentially different. I recommend that authority be given me to appoint such an officer. I find that many companies have two sets of apparatus, and that this is especially the case in respect to Hose-carriages. In some locations it is, no doubt, necessary that Hose-carriages be provided for Engine Companies in addition to their own apparatus; but I can see no propriety in most cases in giving the same Company two kinds of Hose-carriages. I would recommend to the Common Council that an ordinance be passed restricting each Company to one apparatus, except in cases where the Company themselves may have provided the additional apparatus, or in cases where it may be deemed expedient by the Common Council to furnish Engine Companies also with Hose-carriages, or to furnish two sets of apparatus of the same kind to the same Company. If this ordinance be adopted, a large number of Fire Engines and Hose-carriages will be placed at the disposal of the Chief Engineer, which can be used by his order in case of accident, or repairs to the apparatus assigned to any Company. I am satisfied that a large saving can thus be effected in the expenditures of this Department, without impairing its efficiency.

Three clerks have heretofore been employed in this bureau. I find no authority in the ordinance for their appointment, and have notified them of the fact. I would recommend that the Common Council authorize the appointment of two clerks in this bureau.

It is made the duty of the Street Commissioner to cause incumbrances on streets and wharves to be removed to the Corporation yards. It is, therefore, necessary that keepers be appointed to have charge of these yards and of the property stored therein. They are permanent officers, and therefore the authority of the Common Council is necessary for their appointment. I recommend that such authority be given.

I would also call the attention of the Common Council to the necessity of having determined, in a definite manner, the distinction between City and County charges. If the view taken of this matter by the Board of Supervisors be correct, this department is being called upon to furnish, and has furnished, supplies, &c., which it is not within its province to provide. Respectfully submitted.

EDWARD COOPER, Street Commissioner.

On motion of Alderman McSpedon, the Board adjourned, to meet this evening, and every evening—with the exception of Friday and Saturday—until the close of the June session.

Board of Supervisors.

The Board of Supervisors met yesterday afternoon, President Purdy in the Chair.

A communication was received from the Mayor, vetoing the resolution, appropriating $1,000 for cleaning and refurnishing the Special Sessions Rooms.

On motion of Supervisor Bell, the communication of the Mayor, nominating Wilson G. Hunt, Wm. M. Evarts and Gustavus A. Conover, Commissioners of the New City Hall, was called up, and after some consideration, which showed that the Board was not prepared to vote on the confirmation, the communication was referred to the Select Committee, of which Mr. Stilman is Chairman.

The following resolution was referred:

Resolved, In view of the question now pending before the Court of Appeals relating to the legality of the removal of a large portion of the Police force organized before the act of 1857, it is inexpedient to increase the number of the Metropolitan Police forces, as such increase would largely add to our already excessive taxation should the decision of the Court of Appeals be in favor of the old force.

Mr. Blunt, of the Committee on Civil Courts, to whom was referred five bills of Charles W. Baker for printing the calendar of the Supreme Court and for stationery, reported that the amount $962 90 is a gross overcharge and should not be paid. He had obtained an estimate for the same work, as charged in the bill, for furnishing 250 copies of the calendar: One estimated the cost at $50, another at $42 25, and the third at $35—to supply the same, in every particular like those furnished and charged for in the bill, at $135 90.

The bills amount in all to $1,389 68. He believes this might have been furnished for about one-third of the amount. He states, that in the bills, ten reams of paper were charged, where only one ream and twelve quires were necessary. Where six reams were charged, only one ream was used; and where thirty-six reams were charged, only seven were used. He recommended the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Comptroller be directed to pay the three bills for printing the calendars for the Supreme Court, in the following manner, viz.: Bill No. 1, instead of $135 70, pay $56 20; and bills No. 2 and No. 3, respectively, amounting to $129 40 and $697 60, be paid in like proportion.

He stated that Mr. Baker claimed that the overcharge was in consequence of a mistake by his book-keeper.

The majority of the Committee reported in favor of the payment of the bills, modified in accordance with the amount of the mistakes.

The whole subject was referred back to the Committee.

A resolution was adopted, reducing the fees for the registration of births, marriages, and deaths, from 10 to 2 cents.

A resolution was adopted, giving each Police Magistrate an Assistant-Clerk, at a salary of $1,000, per annum, with the exception of Eighty-sixth-street,—that to be $500 per annum.

The Board then adjourned to Tuesday next.

Police Intelligence.

Sharp Female Practitioners—Look out for Begging Females.—A middle-aged woman, plainly but neatly dressed, called at the residence of Mr. John Griswold, No. 20 Union square, yesterday forenoon, and asked to see the lady of the house. The woman was shown into the parlor and requested to be seated. Mrs. Griswold made her appearance in a few minutes, when the visitor, who proved to be a stranger, told her a pitiful tale of the severe privations she had suffered during the past Winter, owing to the death of her husband. She had two children, and wished to raise money enough to redeem a few articles from the pawnbroker's and then go to Boston, where there was a promise of something for her to do to support herself and family. She mentioned the names of several gentlemen and ladies who, she stated, would corroborate her story; and also gave the names of a number of ladies residing in that vicinity who had, she said, just given her money. The woman told her story with such seeming honesty that Mrs. G. readily believed her statement, and gave her some money from her purse. Two other ladies who had called in the meantime were so favorably impressed with the prepossessing appearance of the woman that they also contributed to relieve her alleged necessities. The woman was overflowing with gratitude to her generous benefactors, and upon leaving shook each of them warmly by the hand. Very soon after the departure of the woman Mrs. Griswold discovered to her own utter amazement that of her two lady visitors that they had been sadly victimized by a genuine female sharper—herself, however, the greatest victim—the fact being evidenced by the disappearance of a valuable diamond pin, which the woman had adroitly and stealthily managed to unfasten from her dress and get off before the larceny was detected. A man was immediately dispatched to look after the woman, but she was nowhere to be found. It was ascertained that she had previously called at several houses in the neighborhood, and, by telling the same story as that she told to Mrs. Griswold, had received money from nearly all she visited. The fact of the robbery and a description of the woman was speedily communicated to the Police Head-quarters, in Broome-street, when Sergeant Lefferts sent two of his detectives to search after the woman. From the description given of her she is believed to be Maria Henderson, alias "Cute Moll," who has recently served a term in State Prison for shoplifting.

HOSTETTER'S BITTERS.
Among diseases, Dyspepsia and Diarrhœa rank as most difficult to cure. We are pleased to have it in our power to point out a remedy which has proved effectual in many cases, and which we can safely recommend as a certain and infallible cure. It has been the means of rescuing thousands from an untimely grave, and given the glow of health to many a lean and cadaverous form. The medicine we have reference to is HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS. These Bitters, whose virtues are promulgated through the State, are continually increasing in the favor of the public, and, from the many cures they have effected, have doubtless the ascendency over any other preparations before the public.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN AND PROF. DE GRATH.—Franklin brought electricity from the heavens to earth, but it remained for Prof. De Grath to supply that electricity to the relief of diseased and suffering mortals—diseases that heretofore baffled the physician's old treatment, such as neuralgia, rheumatism, pains, stiff joints, deafness, swellings, palsy, piles skin diseases, &c., are now cured by Prof. De Grath's Electric Oil in one or two days. Read this letter:
Prof. De Grath: I have been the victim for many years of a rheumatic affection and lost the use of my limbs. I could not raise my hand to my head; in short, I was totally helpless. I applied your Electric Oil, and before I had used one bottle I was perfectly restored. You may refer any sufferer to me.
MRS. E. HUTCHINS,
17th and Thompson sts., Philadelphia.
Mrs. Hutchins is well known in Philadelphia. My Oil has cured 2,600 other Philadelphians, among whom are—Geo. W. Ward, Esq., Jos. K. Bacon, R. B. Da Costa, Mrs. Fassit, and C. Bover, No. 502 North 3d st., and others, ad infinitum.
No Electric Oil should be used unless my signature is on the label and name blown on the bottle. All others are dangerous. Bottles 25c., 50c. and $1.

$500 REWARD!—DR. JEFFRIES' ANTIDOTE, a specific mixture for the cure of Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Strictures and similar disorders. It makes a speedy cure without the least restriction of diet, drink, exposure or change in application to business. Further—the disease cannot be contracted if a dose of the Antidote is taken when exposed. Repeated experiments and long experience have proved that it will radically cure any case which can be produced. This desirable result is obtained in from two to ten days; and as it neither creates nausea nor offends the palate, and renders unnecessary all deviation in diet or interruption to usual pursuits, sound sleep or healthy digestion, the disease is thus removed as speedily as is consistent with the production of a thorough and permanent cure. Its ingredients are entirely vegetable, and no injurious effect, either constitutionally or locally, can be caused by its use. Price $1 per bottle. C. H. RING, General Agent, No. 192 Broadway, New-York. Sold by CALLENDER, corner Third and Walnut sts., Philadelphia; W. L. JENISON, Albany.

The Commissioners reserve the right to reject any or all proposals, if not satisfactory. Proposals must be accompanied by not less than two average specimens of each size of tile, and of the collars for connecting them, and manufacturers must be prepared to furnish, if required, one thousand of each size, on or before June 16, 1858, which shall not be inferior to the samples presented.

The tile are to be delivered, whenever required, on or near any road or cart path on the Park, below 86th-st., as fast as they may be wanted for the work. The whole amount to be delivered by Aug. 15, 1858.

All of the tile and collars will be subjected to inspection after their arrival, and must be as good as the samples accompanying the proposals or they will be rejected. The price given must be for 1,000 feet.

The collars must be two inches wide if separate from the tile, or one inch wide beyond the end of the tile proper, if connected with it.

If circular patterns of tile are offered, the collars must surround them; if other patterns, the collars must cover the arch at top, and at least a part of the sides below the spring of the arch, in each case fitting snugly to the tile. The amount required for the present season will be as follows:

Contractors will be allowed to manufacture the tile upon the ground if they wish. In case they should do so, such clay and fuel as the Park affords would be placed at their disposal.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT—June 1.

Before Judge Ingersoll.

Ann Kelly, Administratrix, &c., vs. The New-Jersey Mail Transportation Company.—The Jury in this case came into Court this morning with a sealed verdict, which they were directed on Saturday to bring in this morning. The verdict was in favor of the plaintiff, for the sum of $1,000.

Mr. Van Winkle, for the defendant, requested to have the Jury polled, and on this being done, one juryman dissented from it. Judge Ingersoll, thereupon, directed the Jury to retire again for a further consideration. They could not, however, agree, and were finally discharged.

RESISTING CUSTOM-HOUSE OFFICERS.

The United States vs. Paul Mestayer, Omer Pergoline, John B. Stouvenel, Jr., Sebastian Rose and Sevrin Dedeyer.—These defendants were put on trial, charged with resisting Custom-House officers in the exercise of their duty.

It appeared that the Custom-House officers went to the store of Messrs. Mestayer & Pergoline, to seize some goods which had become forfeited, as was claimed, by reason of violation of the Revenue laws. Controversy arose between the officers and the defendant as to the propriety of the officers seizing, also, certain books and papers; and, as is alleged by the prosecution, the officers were driven out of the store. Whereupon, this indictment was found against every person in the store, except an errand-boy. The case is still on.

For the United States, Mr. Sedgwick and Mr. Hunt. For defendants, Mr. Cutting and Mr. Sanxay.

SUPREME COURT—Circuit.

Before the Hon. Justice Hogeboom.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY WITH A PAN OF HOT WATER.

Reuben S. Royce vs. John Josephs.—This is an action for assault and battery. The plaintiff, in January, 1857, was second mate of the Escoriaza. At Havana the captain and mate were on shore. Some complaint was made that the cook cut off the fat from the meat, whereupon the plaintiff went to him and remonstrated with him. The cook, much provoked, threw a pan of hot water over plaintiff, scalding him severely. Plaintiff's wife then appeared and said something, when defendant seized a pan of hot fat, and tried to throw it upon them, but was prevented from so doing by some of the men. Plaintiff sues for damages.

On the trial the plaintiff was examined on his own behalf, but the defendant being absent at sea, no testimony was presented on his side. His Honor charged that there appeared to be no cause for the assault, and no threats or violence used by plaintiff to warrant the attack.

The jury brought in a verdict for the plaintiff.

Ex-Judge Beebe for plaintiff, Alanson Nash for defendant.

Hays vs. Wilten—The examination of defendant must be proved.

Haywood vs. Shaw.—Alter the draft so as to give plaintiff costs of the suit, except the costs of the term at which the cause was tried, which costs he must pay to defendant, Morrill, together with an additional allowance of $50. Let a provision be also made for costs for defendant, Bailey, excluding term and trial fees.

Before Judge Sutherland.

Fassett vs. Tallmadge.—The sale of the property, assets and effects of R. L. Howell & Co., and of Bowers, Talmadge & Co., to the defendant, must be declared fraudulent and void as to the plaintiffs and all other creditors of R. L. Howell & Co.

Wilson vs. Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana Railroad Co.—Motion denied, without costs.

The Park Bank vs. Robert Davis et al.—Judgments for plaintiffs on demurrer, in each action, with liberty to defendants to answer in twenty days.

Brooklyn Items.

A Policeman in Difficulty.—A few mornings ago a policeman was discovered in the act of stealing several articles from a store in Atlantic-street. When charged with the offence he returned the stolen property, and immediately handed his resignation to the Deputy Superintendent. Whether the Board of Commissioners will accept it, and the proprietor of the store will consider this a sufficient punishment for the offence, remains to be seen.

Educational Matters.—The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education was held yesterday afternoon, Vice-President Baylis in the chair.

Considerable routine business was transacted, besides which several matters of more than usual interest came before the Board for consideration.

The Teachers' Committee, in connection with their regular report of appointments, resignations, &c., presented three communications relative to paying three persons who had been employed temporarily by the Local Committee of three different schools. One of the rules of the Board prohibits the Local Committees from employing teachers for more than two weeks without the sanction of the Teachers' Committee, and those thus employed must hold a certificate of their qualification to teach from the City Superintendent. Each of the three teachers referred to, the chairman of the Committee stated, asked for pay for one month's service, and the Committee desired instructions from the Board such as would be a precedent to guide them for all similar cases in the future. A lengthy debate followed a motion to pay the bills for the full month, during which it was made known that one of the teachers, then temporarily employed, and one who had been acting as principal of one of the schools, had, a short time ago, failed to come up to the standard of qualification required by the Superintendent and Committee; that of the other two, one was only fifteen years old, and, therefore, not eligible, while the other, though old enough, had, like the first one, been examined by the Superintendent and Committee, and was found not to be competent, and both attended the Public Schools as pupils.

Several amendments were made to the original resolution as to the amount to be paid, but, upon the final vote, the application for pay was rejected.

HEATING PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The Special Committee appointed a short time subsequent to the destruction by fire of Public School Building No. 14, to examine as to the safety of the heating apparatus and means of exit in the other public schools, and with power to make alterations where deemed necessary, reported, that, accompanied by an experienced furnace-setter and an architect, they had visited every school house, and made all necessary alterations in the heating apparatus, and also in the means of egress. The report was adopted.

CAN A GOOD TEACHER BE A GOOD POLITICIAN?

Mr. Harris offered the following resolution, which caused a long debate:

Resolved, That the acceptance of a nomination to a political office by any Teacher in the employ of this Board, will be in the future considered as an equivalent to a resignation.

Dr. Thorne moved to amend so as to include the members of the Board. Not seconded.

The supporters of the resolution urged that it was impossible for Teachers to serve the public and the Board of Education at one and the same time.

Mr. Whitney moved to amend by inserting "to the office of Alderman." He thought the two positions were inconsistent, for a teacher in the Board of Aldermen was both a master and servant of this Board.

Mr. Harris was willing to accept this amendment.

Dr. Thorne, while speaking in favor of the motion, stated as a disgraceful fact, which he knew to be so, that teachers had been known to hang around Engine-houses and groggeries to make a little political capital.

Finally, Mr. Dunham offered the following as a substitute, and it was accepted:

Resolved, That the Board will consider it impolitic for teachers in the Public Schools to accept a nomination for the office of Alderman or Supervisor.

This was adopted—ayes 21, noes 14.

After the transaction of some further business of no general interest, the Board adjourned.

Board of Health.—The first meeting of the Board of Health was held yesterday morning. Present Mayor Powell, Aldermen Franks and Whitney. As there was no business before the Board, they adjourned till Tuesday next, subject, however, to be called together at any time.

Mayor Powell suggested that it would be best for the Board to immediately visit the swill-milk stables, and all other permanent places where nuisances are maintained, so that the Board can act understandingly, and at the same time notify the different proprietors just what the Board intend to do.

Circuit Court—Court of Oyer and Terminer.—The June Term of this Court was commenced yesterday. No civil cases will be taken up before Thursday. The Grand and Petit Jurors present were sworn and discharged till Thursday, on which day there is a bare probability that the murderers of George Simonson will be arraigned for trial.

Tuesday, June 1—P. M.

There was a much-improved demand for Stocks to-day, the recent considerable decline of 3@5 ₩ cent. on the Share list having attracted more attention than the political dispatches from Washington (which are less excited in temper to-day) are able to qualify. The tone of the Foreign market and money news received in the course of the day also assisted somewhat the upward turn on the Stock Exchange, and at the Second Board this afternoon the list closed stronger throughout by nearly 1 ₩ cent. than on Monday. The variations in the markets for Money and Foreign Bills also favor the Bull speculators, the first being easier than usual for demand loans and short paper, in preference to long-date paper, and the latter cheaper by ⅛@¼ ₩ cent. on London than for the previous market. The regular bank drawers accepted 109⅝@¾ for the Boston mail to-day while transient bank bills were done at 109⅜@109½ ₩ cent. Francs were 5.15@5.13¾ to the dollar. The $500,000 in Gold for New-Orleans, heretofore notified from Washington, went forward by express from the Sub-Treasury Office yesterday afternoon.

In State Stocks, the heaviest business to-day was in Missouri sixes, which recovered to 84 ₩ cent. Sales of $100,000. A parcel of $216,000 new Michigan six ₩ cent. has been awarded at 101⅛ to some private bankers in Detroit. A Chicago bid, at 101, and a bid from New-York, at 100½, were unsuccessful. Tennessee sixes were done at 90, and Virginias at 92½@¾ ₩ cent. New-York Central sixes are maintained at 89, while Illinois Centrals have fallen off to 86 ₩ cent., although the last London quotation is 83 ₩ cent. Sterling. The dealings in the Shares in this market are quite limited. In the English market they have recovered to 89½ ₩ cent. The unsecured Bonds of the Erie Company are again lower, the '71s selling at 39¾ ₩ cent. The Hudson River Mortgages are all in good request. In Railway Shares, New-York Central had the lead, and in the afternoon sold at 83⅞ ₩ cent., as against 82½ on Monday morning. Rock Island improved to 74; Erie to 19¾; Reading to 42; and Michigan Southern to 22 ₩ cent. The Cumberland Shares are now dealt in with the $5 assessment added, and sold at 21¼ ₩ cent. About four-fifths the old stock have taken this form. The general market left off firm.

The news by the steamers from England, published to-day, is to Wednesday, May 19, from Liverpool. The Cotton trade is firm at Manchester, and on the middling qualities of the raw material, at Liverpool, the market is well sustained. The fine and lower grades are ⅛d. off. Grain was firmer in London, but no particular change is noted in the circulars from Liverpool. The English Funds are firmer by ⅛@⅜ ₩ cent. and the receipt of $1,950,000 in gold from Australia, and $1,000,000 in gold and silver from the West Indies is reported from London. Money abundant at 2¼@2½ ₩ cent. in the open market. The ministerial question not yet decided. In American Stocks Illinois Central Shares had advanced to 89½. In other descriptions no change since the sailing of the Africa on the 15th May. Of French financial affairs, the London News reports:

> "The advices from Paris describe increased heaviness on the Bourse as regards many of the securities known to be held by the Crédit Mobilier Society. Among others, the shares of the Southern Railway Company of France have lately sustained a further severe fall, which is ascribed in part to the evil effects of the competition carried on between that undertaking and the Languedoc Canal. It is alleged that of the £9,200,000 of new railway obligations, the placing of which during the present year is intrusted to the Bank of France, about £4,000,000 has already been worked off. Surprise cannot be felt at the heaviness of the Rentes, and of all other securities, in face of this wholesale issue of new bonds upon tempting terms. It must be borne in mind, too, that the money derived from the new bonds which are being thus forced out is to be applied in most instances to the construction of branches and extensions, which can scarcely fail to reduce the rate of dividend of the parent undertakings."

A bill of complaint was filed in the Court of Common Pleas to-day, by C. J. Macdonald vs. Garrison & Morgan, in which the plaintiff claims $86,000 to be due to him from the defendants for services rendered to them in Nicaragua, in 1855 1856 and 1857. He alleges that the defendants being agents of the Nicaragua Transit Company—the one at San Francisco, the other at New-York—formed a copartnership in the business of transporting passengers and freight between California and the Atlantic States via Nicaragua, and for the purpose of obtaining a revocation of the old charter, and securing a new one. That the partnership embraced speculations in Transit Stock, &c., to be based on exclusive and authentic information of the revocation of the charter. That the plaintiff went to Nicaragua in September, 1855, encountered great hardships and risks of health, life and limb, from exposure to climate, presence in hostile camps and besieged places, and finally accomplished his mission of procuring the revocation of the old charter of the Transit Company, and the grant of a new charter for the benefit of the defendants, and conveyed to them the exclusive and authentic information thereof; and that he induced the Government of Nicaragua to sell to them property, consisting of steamboats, wharves, houses, stores, &c., of the value of half a million of dollars, at low prices, &c.

Mr. W. P. Wright's Circular of this week remarks as follows on the dullness of the New-York market and the prospect of the young crop South:

"The past week has been one of unusual depression in this market, and prices have further receded ⅜c. ₩ lb., making the decline from the highest point quite 1c. ₩ lb. Our principal spinners having latterly stocked themselves by purchases made in the South, are now out of the market, and exporters refrain from entering upon new operations, until the probable effect upon the Liverpool market of the advices from this side is more clearly manifested. The stock in this City is heavy and accumulating, and holders, though not pressing, have shown more uneasiness to realize; but, rather than accept the prices offered, have in some cases shipped their cotton to Liverpool. The sales for the week are estimated at 6,000 bales, and the market closed irregular and heavy, at the submitted nominal quotations. There has not been any demand for floating parcels, though considerable concessions have been offered. Several large shipments have been sent forward by this steamer. On the 25th of May, in consequence of heavy rains, there was a great rise of water at Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Louisville, St. Louis, Alton and Dubuque, and a considerable one in the Missouri from St. Joseph's down. At Cairo, on 25th, the Ohio was rising at the rate of six inches per hour. At St. Louis, on 27th, the water was between four and five feet higher than it has been this year, and stationary, but a further rise expected, and at Pittsburgh, on 29th, the water was falling rapidly, after being higher than in the previous floods of the past few weeks. The weather appears to have been fine on and after 26th inst., at all these places, but higher water may be looked for, at least from Cairo to the mouth of the Arkansas, during the next ten days than has been reported this year, in which case the crevasses and overflows in the cotton and sugar regions may continue until about the middle of June. The weather for the growing crop is very favorable, the stands are good, and the plant itself looks well. The crop is certainly more forward than last year.

We are requested to state that Mr. Nicolay's regular sales of stock during the Summer months will take place on Mondays and Thursdays, instead of daily, as is usual in the business season. He will hold special sales, however, on any day that may be required.

Of the Bonds of the City of Milwaukee, issued to the Railway Corporations in Wisconsin, $100,000 were to the Milwaukee and Superior Company, whose organization turns out to have been a gross fraud, and whose proceedings, first to last, were a financial fiction, purposely designed to secure this subscription (the only bona-fide one) from the City! This money has, of course, been squandered, and when the concern is overhauled by a Legislative Committee, as it recently was, the practical results are found in five miles of road, two locomotives, a few platform-cars and two hand-cars, "the whole covered by a chattel mortgage!" The fictitious stock subscriptions, and farm and road mortgages, upon which not one dollar in cash seems to have been paid, are made to figure to the extent of $525,000, preliminary to the City aid. Of the stock issued, $100,000 was distributed in bonuses to the President and Directors, by and among themselves, as full paid, viz., to Hermann Hærtel, $15,000; to Edward Button, $15,000; to D. P. Hull, $15,000; to Joshua Stark, $7,500; and to the President, one C. R. Alton, $42,500. The other $5,000 to some favored outsider!

The following is to-day's business at the office of the Assistant-Treasurer:

Receipts	$106,194
Payments	180,108
Balance	5,685,916

The receipts include $48,000 from Customs.

The Philadelphia Ledger reports of the operations of the Mint in May:

"The deposits of gold at the United States Mint for the month of May were, from all sources, $343,400. The deposits of silver for the same time were $206,590. The number of old cents received in exchange for the new, were equal to $3,970—making the total deposits for the month $553,966. The gold coinage for the same time was $338,180 in double eagles, and $12,291 in gold dollars—in all $351,471. The silver coinage was $48,000 in half-dollars, $159,000 in quarters, and $33,000 in half-dimes, besides $6,729 in three-cent pieces—in all $246,720. There were coined during the month 2,200,000 cents, of the value of $22,000. Total number of pieces of all kinds coined during the month, 3,845,200.

Real Estate....Tuesday, June 1.

Another dull day, and but little business done. Mr. A. J. Bleecker sold, by order of Court, two lots, south side of One Hundred and Fifth-street, 225 feet east of Tenth avenue. Bought by plaintiff in the suit for $190 each.

On the west side of Fifth-avenue, on the lot nearest to Dr. Spring's Church, Mr. Uriah Hendricks—who sold to the Brick Church the ground they now occupy, and whose brother has lately built the very costly house opposite on the southwest corner of Thirty-seventh-street—has just broken ground for another Fifth-avenue palace. It is to be 32 feet 6 inches front by 80 feet 6 inches deep, with a 17 feet 6 inches by 12 feet 6 inches extension.

THIRTY-FOURTH-STREET.

A number of superior improvements have recently been commenced on this street. It is 100 feet wide; and as no street lots in the City, not opposite a park or public square, have ever reached the prices which Thirty-fourth-street lots now or will command for private residences, we shall take the opportunity not only to notice the improvements, but to give a short history of the street:

Historical Search.—On the 16th March, 1799, Mr. John Thomson purchased of the corporation of the City of New-York for the sum of £482 10s., four lots of the common lands of Murray Hill, containing 20 acres, situated on 33d, 34th and 35th-streets, and extending from Madison-avenue across Fifth-avenue to within about 300 feet of the Bloomingdale road. Mr. Thomson afterwards failed, and his property was sold in 1825 to Isaac & Thomas Lawrence for $14,000. In 1827, W. B. Astor bought Mr. Thos. Lawrence's half for $20,500. On 1st August, 1840, Isaac Lawrence and Mr. Astor made a partition between themselves, by which 124 lots fell to Mr. Astor, and 124 lots to Mr. Lawrence. They had, in the meantime, increased the land a little, by purchasing gores to square their lines. These lots, now estimated say at $8,000 each, would make Mr. Astor's half worth one million of dollars.

The lots of Isaac Lawrence were sold at auction by his administrator, on Nov. 20, 1843, and the following were some of the prices paid. We commence on the northwest corner of Fifth-avenue and Thirty-fourth-street, and number west:

The corner lot ran up unexpectedly high, and when it was finally struck down at $1,300 (to use the language of a well-posted gentleman present at the sale) "a universal titter ran through the room," the price was regarded as so extravagant. This lot, on which now stands a part of Dr. Townsend's palace, would, if offered for sale, readily bring $18,000. Our reason for thinking so is the fact, that two years ago the less valuable lot on the northeast corner of the same street and avenue, was sold for $17,000. We may remark in passing, that at the Lawrence sale this lot was knocked down at $710; and the inside avenue lots, on the east side, between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth streets, averaged about $500 each. The northeast corner of Thirty-fifth-street and Fifth-avenue brought $500. The southwest corner of Thirty-fifth-street and Fifth-avenue brought $770. The southwest corner of Madison-avenue and Thirty-fourth-street $415. The northwest corner of Fifth-avenue and Thirty-second-street, on which Mr. Rigney's house now stands, was bought by T. Putnam, Esq., for the sum of $600, who afterwards thought it one of the worst purchases he ever made in his life. It was his impression that a 700-foot pole would not find bottom. But Mr. Rigney's house has never settled any yet. Other lots on Thirty-second-street, which have since been sold for $8,000 each, then were sold for $265 per lot to John Pettigrew and others. And two entire blocks, now lying in the Central Park, between Seventh and Eighth avenues, from Sixty-first-street to Sixty third-street, containing 128 lots, brought $4,630—equal to about $35 per lot. The Central Park Commissioners allowed for them about $1,000 per lot. To return:

Nos. 2, 3 and 4, counted as inside avenue lots, brought, at the same sale, only $780 each, which is only $15 more than Mr. Douglas paid, a few days since, on the corner of the same avenue and One hundred and thirty-fifth-street. This would make the cost, fourteen years ago, of the six lots comprising Dr. Townsend's grounds, $4,800. The same are now worth something like $75,000 or $80,000; the original cost having doubled up nearly once for every three years since that sale. In 1849 Dr. T. offered $18,000 for the same six lots and was refused. But in less than two years, say in 1851, he paid more than double that price, namely, $37,500 for the six lots.

Nos. 7 and 8, recently improved by Mrs. Cashman and Mr. Wm. Post, also brought at the same sale $580 each. We understand they have each been offered and have refused $40,000 for their houses, including the lots in the rear.

The above-named 8 lots were bought at the Lawrence sale by Daniel Parish, Francis Griffin, and Charles G. Havens. They bought altogether, on both sides of the avenue, from Thirty-fourth to Thirty-fifth streets, about 40 lots, at an average price of $500 per lot.

Nos. 9 and 10, now held by Wm. Hurry,—and Nos. 11 and 12, now or lately Counselor John A. Stoughton's—brought $425 each; only about two-thirds the price paid the other day by Mr. Daniel Schoonmaker for lots on One hundred and twenty-fifth-street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues.

Nos 13 to 16, lately purchased of August Belmont by Dr. Townsend, were bought at the same sale by Mr. John Q. Aymar, for $100 each.

Nos. 17, 18 and 19, (now Witthaus',) and 20, (now Warner's,) and 21 to 24, (now Wm. R. Martin's, to whom we are specially indebted for some of these researches,) brought on an average $300 per lot.

This brings us on the north side over to the Van Orden title. We now subjoin a few additional particulars respecting the above property:

Nos. 1 to 8 were sold about the year 1852 or 1853 to Mr. Belmont for $5,000 each; by him to Mr. Richardson, and by him to Dr. Townsend.

A little over two years ago Widow Mary Cashman, then of East Broadway, bought No. 7, a through lot, directly in rear of Dr. Townsend, for $12,000.

Nos. 9 to 12, which at the Lawrence sale brought together $1,700, were afterwards bought by Mr. W. Howland, and sold by his executors for $8,000, to Mr. C. W. Thomas.

In 1854, these four lots, together with four more in the rear, on south side of Thirty-fifth-street, were sold by Mr. Thomas to Meyers & Stewart for $32,000—now Hurry & Stoughton's.

Mr. Aymar, feeling no great confidence in the soundness of his purchase of Nos. 13 to 16 at $400 per lot, allowed Messrs. Manice and Havens to take them off his hands at the cost price.

These gentlemen subsequently sold them to Mr. Meeks for $5,250 per lot. They were afterwards, say in 1855, purchased by Belmont, together with three in the rear, for $45,000, and by him sold to S. P. Townsend, Esq., their present owner, for $60,000.

Nos. 17 to 24, 8 lots, which, at the Lawrence sale in 1844, brought $2,245, were sold the next year to John and W. H. Howland for $6,400. They sold in 1849 to C. W. Thomas for $12,000, or $1,500 each. In 1857 Mr. Thomas sold 17 to 19 to Witthaus, and 20 to Sam Warner, the architect, for $8,000 each. The remaining 4, Nos. 21 to 24, belong now, as above stated, to Mr. Wm. R. Martin, who was interested with Mr. Thomas in the original purchase.

On the south side of Thirty-fourth-street, the first 55 feet, running from Fifth-avenue towards Broadway both on Thirty-fourth and Thirty-third streets, belongs to Wm. B. Astor, under the Thomson and Astor and Lawrence title. The balance, on both sides of Thirty-fourth-street, towards Broadway, was part of the farm of Peter Van Orden, which lay on both sides of the Bloomingdale road, and contained 21 acres. A parcel containing 3 acres was conveyed in 1827, by Samuel Van Orden, one of his heirs, to Thomas Burlock and Joshua D. Waterman. It was locked up in all sorts of litigation between them, until 1837, when the lots on the north side of Thirty-fourth-street, extending from Sixth-avenue east 320 feet, were decreed to belong to Thomas Burlock. In 1850 and 1851 he sold at the rate of $2,000 per lot.

In 1854 or 1855, Mr. David Irwin purchased five of them (120 feet) at the rate of $6,000 each. We have heretofore noticed the fact that he had built on two of them and sold, and is now building on the remaining three.

The two adjoining him on the west belong to Jos. Palmer.

Last year the Tabernacle Church bought the whole front on the east side of Sixth-avenue, from Thirty-fourth to Thirty-fifth-street, 8 lots, for $64,000, together with two adjoining on Thirty-fourth-street, for $16,000; making $80,000 for the whole, or $8,000 per lot, for 10 lots.

In 1851, Mr. James Phalen purchased a gore, (which he still owns,) equal to about four lots, on the southeast corner of Sixth-avenue and Thirty-fourth-street, for $12,000.

On the south side, we believe the present ownership will run east from Sixth-avenue as follows: Phalen, 125 feet; Rafael, 125 feet; Hornby, 50 feet; Maynard, who has built a brown-stone house, 25 feet; Runyon W. Martin, (the father of Wm. R., already named,) 45 feet; the balance to Wm. B. Astor, 550 feet.

IMPROVEMENTS NOW IN PROGRESS.

On Nos. 9 and 10, adjoining Mr. Post, and 200 feet west of Fifth-avenue, Mr. William Hurry (the brother of Edmund) has commenced two first class brown-stone houses; one 30 by 85 feet, and the other 20 by 65 feet. These were also through lots, and on the two in Thirty-fifth street Mr. H. last year erected three four-story brown-stone houses, in one of which he now temporarily resides.

On Nos. 11 and 12, adjacent to Mr. Hurry, Mr. Stoughton commenced a large and elegant house fifty feet front by seventy-five feet deep, four stories and basement, brown-stone. (We hear that he has lately sold.)

For Nos. 13, 14, 15 and 16, together with three in the rear of Thirty-fifth-street, Dr. Townsend paid, this Spring, the sum of $60,000. Allowing $6,000 each for the three on Thirty-fifth-street, the four on Thirty-fourth-street would stand at $10,500 each. On these four lots Dr. T. is now piling the foundations for four elegant octagon-front, four-story and basement, brown-stone houses, 25x65 feet, with extensions; to cost $20,000 to build. And on the three Thirty-fifth-street lots he will erect three four story and basement, brown-stone houses, 22x50 feet; leaving a nine foot carriage way on one side, in the event of its being wanted.

We come next to Nos. 17, 18, and 19, owned by Rudolph A. Witthaus, Esq. On two of these lots—leaving a 10-feet carriage-way to the rear—Mr. Gustavus A. Conover is now proceeding with the construction for Mr. W. of a very superior four-story brown-stone house, 40 by 68 feet, which will cost about $40,000 to build. The front is to be after the style of the much-admired front of Mr. (Architect) Thomas, of Fifth-avenue.

On No. 20, Mr. Samuel Warner has nearly finished a first-class four-story and basement brown-stone house, 25x65 feet, with an extension.

Passing Mr. Wm. R. Martin's four lots, Nos. 21, 22, 23 and 24, we come to Nos. 25, 26 and 27, Mr. David Irwin's. On these, as we have heretofore noticed, he is now proceeding with three four-story and basement brown-stone houses.

Nos. 28 and 29, Mr. Irwin has already improved and sold.

Nos. 30 and 31 are still vacant, and lie contiguous to the Tabernacle.

The Tabernacle is admirably located on the northeast corner of Sixth-avenue, at the junction of Broadway and Thirty-fourth-street. It stands 150 feet on Thirty-fourth-street, and is already looming up, a huge Gothic structure, and when completed will doubtless be one of the most elegant and expensive churches in the city. We reserve a full description for another occasion.

In the immediate vicinity of Thirty-fourth-street there are in progress some very extensive and costly improvements, which will add much to the beauty of the neighborhood.

On the northwest corner of Fifth-avenue and Thirty-third-street, Mr. John Jacob Astor is now excavating the cellar of a house 50x100 feet, which is expected to be an elegant structure. Thus, with Mr. W. B. Astor on the corner of Thirty-fourth-street, the two brothers will occupy the whole front on the west side of Fifth-avenue, between Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth-streets. And if, as we understand it is proposed, they appropriate the balance of the 550 feet to an ornamental garden, it will add a great attraction to Thirty-fourth-street and vicinity.

On the northeast corner of Fifth-avenue and Thirty-fourth-street, Mr. Cartwright, (we know not how the name is spelled) from Erie, Pa., has nearly completed a highly and delicately ornamented mansion, opposite Dr. Townsend's palace, at an expense of some $65,000 to $80,000, 33x75 feet, 4 stories and brown stone.

Finance and Business in Boston.

From the Boston Post, June 1.

The current rate for money, on prime paper, seems to be 5 ₩ cent. The market continues exceedingly dull, and large sums cannot be lent at any price. The supply of credit is as abundant as ever, in comparison with the demand; and any amount of money can be readily obtained in the street or at the banks at from 4@7 ₩ cent., according to the standing of the applicants, the size of the loan, and the character of the security offered. The bank specie continues to exceed nine and a quarter millions, notwithstanding the recent large payments for treasury notes. It will probably receive a handsome increase from the California arrival, reported on Saturday. At the close of the week, New-York funds were in brisk and general demand, but the supply seemed sufficient, if not over-abundant. Sterling Exchange closed at 9¾ asked for the very best bankers' bills drawn in sums to suit; but there were few transactions for the Saturday's boat. The best drawn bills were taken by bankers at 9½@9¾, and by individual remitters at a fraction higher. Business continues very moderate, save in exceptional cases, which, however, are to be found in every branch of trade. Very many wholesale and retail houses are, and have been, doing nearly or quite as much as in the corresponding months of 1857. Others show from one-half to three-quarters of the business of last year, while others are, and have been, very quiet since the panic. There is and has been no rush anywhere, but the trade that has been done is evidently healthy, and the per centage of cash taken is remarkably large. The dull weather of the last fortnight has injured business considerably.
